JOHNSON SAYS MISTAKES OF NRA WERE DUE TO HIS ADMINISTRATION

By NATHAN ROBERTSON
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, April 18—(AP)—Plainspoken as usual, Hugh S. Johnson told the senate finance committee today the mistakes of NRA were due to his administration and that to abandon it would be "like turning down your house to get rid of a few rats in the attic."

He freely admitted mistakes and errors in NRA, but as faults of administration and not of the law. The blue eagle was set up, he said, to stop the trend of concentration of industrial power which was wiping out the small man.

"No more explosive act of destruction could be committed than to kill it now and go back [illegible] utter futility of the system [illegible] had here before 1933," [illegible] testified.

[illegible] hard hitting former cavalry officer warned that it was [illegible]cy" to contend the cold [illegible]ic system could not be [illegible] upon, and that "if we [illegible] to that fallacy, the cap[illegible] system is on its way out [illegible] very near future."

[illegible] April [illegible]—(AP)—[illegible] schedule of action [illegible] up today by house [illegible] with the aim of getting [illegible] for adjournment by June or July 1.

Speaker Byrns conceded, however, that slowness in the senate [illegible] delay the end of this session of congress even until August.

"But," he said, "we are beginning to get our things in such shape now that the blame, if any, for a long session will rest where it should—on the senate."

The leaders' tentative program, subject to change, were [illegible] bills in about this order: social security, naval appropriations, Omnibus banking, farm [illegible]ation, utilities holding companies, NRA extension, ship subsidy, merchant marine, motor [illegible] regulation and tax extension. [illegible] may be added, or some of [illegible] dropped.

The house committees are doing a good job," Byrns said, "we [illegible] get started until a month later than usual this year, and [illegible] moving right along. That's [illegible] reason I asked the members [illegible] other day to stay on the job. The committees have been doing fine, and when they get [illegible] up on the floor I like to see [illegible] move along."

Dust Stopped Laura

Laura Ingalls, noted woman flyer, is shown above as she hopped off from Los Angeles early Tuesday for an attempt to set a new transcontinental record for women flyers. She was forced down in Colorado, however, after flying blind for several hours through the dense fog of dust over the Midwest. She expects to make a new attempt when weather conditions are improved.

SEVERAL POLITICAL LEADERS BULGARIA ARRESTED TODAY

ONE FORMER PRIME MINISTER INTERNED AFTER SURPRISE AIDS

(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press.)

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 18.—(AP)—The resignations of three cabinet ministers were unofficially reported this afternoon following wholesale arrests of a group of the country's former leading statesmen.

Those who were said to have tendered resignations were Kosta Batoloff, foreign minister, Janaki Moloff, minister of economics, and Minister of Justice Diekoff.

The reports said the resignations were caused by the disapproval of some of the cabinet members of the series of raids carried out today by the government with the arrest and interment of such men as Former Premiers Kimon Gueorguieff and Alexander Zankoff.

Premier Petko Zlateff went to the royal palace to confer with King Boris.

In some quarters there was speculation that a cabinet change was unlikely until Michael Kalendaroff, minister of finance, should return from London where he is discussing debts.

Gueorguieff was arrested in a surprise raid ordered by the minister of the interior, and jailed with him were several of his political friends who in his last year's coup d'etat helped him seize the premiership.

The surprise arrests are aftermaths of the Jan. 20 upset in which General Petkonlateff, who last year helped Gueorguieff to power, about-faced and helped Boris oust him. Gen. Petko Zlateff then became premier.

DIPLOMATIC NOTE RECEIVED RESULT OF LEAGUE ACTION

NOTE DESCRIBED AS 'SIZZLER' CLOTHED IN STRONGEST POSSIBLE LANGUAGE

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BERLIN, April 18.—(AP)—A British embassy spokesman revealed today that Reichsfuehrer Hitler had sent Great Britain a diplofatic note which he described as "a sizzler," although he declined to divulge the note's exact contents.

He said the note, clothed in the strongest possible language, was relayed to Sir Eric Phipps, the British ambassador, from Hitler through Bernard Von Buelow, foreign under-secretary, yesterday.

The central argument expressed in the note was said to be that yesterday's action by the League of Nations council positively means the end of any talk of Germany returning to the league.

It is known that Hitler bitterly resents Great Britain's action in siding with France and Italy, German circles saying he was led to believe that Great Britain would stick to her role of "honest broker." These sources said Hitler felt strongly that Great Britain did not play the game in ranging herself on the side of France and Italy following the conversations here between him-

SENATOR REGAN IS ACTING GOVERNOR OF TEXAS THURSDAY

ABSENCE OF ALLRED AND WOODUL THROWS MANTEL ON PECOS STATESMAN

AUSTIN, April 18.—(AP)—Texas had her third governor in a week today. He was Senator Ken Regan of Pecos, president pro tem of the senate.

Senator Regan succeeded to the chief executiveship during the absence from the state of Governor James V. Allred, who was in Washington, and Lieutenant-Governor Walter F. Woodul, who was in Oklahoma City.

Regan was "inaugurated" informally at a breakfast attended by most of the members of the senate, Speaker Coke Stevenson of the house of representativs, and formr governors W. P. Hobby of Houston and James E. Ferguson of Austin.

"I never thought much of the Thomas bill," said Senator Clint Small of Amarillo, one of the speakers, "but it has brought West Texas her first governor."

Governor Allred went to Washington to attend a hearing on the bill, which would give the federal government increased authority to regulate the oil industry.

"It is to be regretted on behalf of the people of Texas that Mr.

Farm Mortgage Refinancing Bill Is Given Approval

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—The Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing bill—to which administration leaders are opposed—was approved without a record vote today by the house agriculture committee.

Whether it reaches a house vote depends upon the attitude of the rules committee—which decides what measures shall be debated—or upon the possibility of obtaining unanimous consent for consideration.

Committee approval also was given a bill by Chairman Jones (D-Tex.) to establish what would amount to a federal reserve bank for agriculture.

Intermediate credit banks would be able to issue notes to lower the cost of money lent to farmers by eliminating the extra charge of floating bond issues through which the farm credit administration now raises the funds.

The Frazier-Lemke bill provides for government refinancing at low interest and amortization rates through a $3,000,000,000 note issue.

The government would take over a farmer's mortgage through machinery set up in the farm credit administration and permit the farmer to carry his property by paying annually only one and one-half per cent each on principal and interest.

FIRST SERIES TAX ENFORCEMENT BILLS PASSED BY HOUSE

SENATE ALSO BUSY WITH LEGISLATION THURSDAY; MANY BILLS PENDING

AUSTIN, April 18.—(AP)—The first of a series of bills to aid enforcement of existing tax laws and balance the state's budget was passed to the senate today by the house after an amendment to increase the oil production tax was rejected The vote was 138 to 2.

The bill would plug loopholes in the oil production tax law by making subsequent purchasers liable for the tax and giving the state comptroller additional men to enforce its provisions. It will be followed by bills to bolster collection of beer, cigarette and other taxes.

Representative A. K. Daniel of Crockett proposed the oil tax increase. His amendment was ruled out of order and a motion to suspend the rules to permit its consideration was defeated, 74 to 57, failing to obtain even a majority vote.

"Oklahoma recently raised its tax to five cents per barrel and Texas is sitting idly by and getting but two cents while this rich and irreplaceable natural resource is leaving the state," Daniel said. "Texas ought to receive a fair tax on its natural resources."

Rules Are Suspended.

The bill was considered under suspension of the rules in conformity with a suggestion made yesterday by Walter F. Woodul lieutenant governor, acting as governor.

The house also passed by an overwhelming vote the beer tax correction law. It would abolish the beer stamp and levy the tax on the first sale. Manufacturers and wholesalers would be bonded. Sponsors said the stamp tax

TAX COLLECTIONS IN NAVARRO COUNTY SHOW BIG INCREASE

APPROXIMATELY $100,000 MORE COLLECTED THAN IN PREVIOUS PERIOD

Tax collections in Navarro county soared during January, February and March this year to approximately $100,000 more than during the corresponding months in 1934, according to figures released by R. L. (Bob) Harris, assessor and collector of taxes, Thursday morning.

Automobile registrations were approximately $10,000 higher than last year, delinquent tax payments surpassed the previous year nearly $40,000, and current tax collections amounted to approximately $45,000 more than in 1934.

The total collections, including all taxes except occupations, for January, February and March, 1935, amounted to $363,271.16, as compared with $268,398.44 for the corresponding months in 1934.

Auto registrations in 1934 for the first three months were $66,175.43, while in 1935, the figure

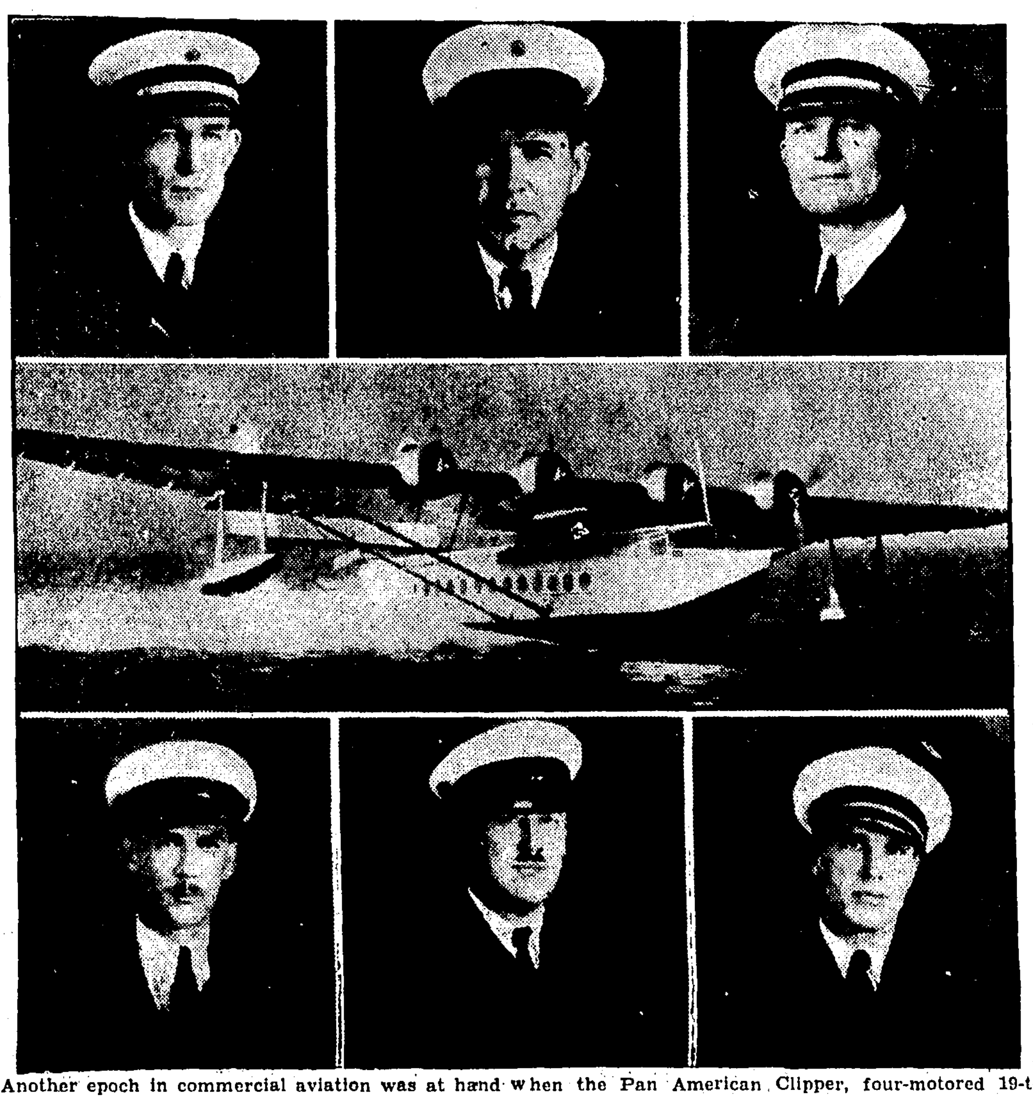
AS AIR CLIPPER POISED FOR FIRST FLIGHT TO HAWAII



Another epoch in commercial aviation was at hand when the Pan American Clipper, four-motored 19-ton amphibian transport, shown above, started its 2,400-mile hop to Hawaii, the final test flight for a projected air line. Edwin C. Musick (top center), veteran of 22 years of flying, is the commander. The others in the crew are: top left, F. J. Noonan, navigation officer, and top right, R. O. D. Sullivan, second in command. Bottom row, left to right: W. T. Jarboe, Jr., radio officer; V. A. Wright, engineering officer, and Harry E. Canaday, junior flight officer. The big air liner has accommodations for 52 persons, and cruises 150 to 160 miles per hour. It set a new record in the flight to Honolulu, although it idled on its course. United States Sends New Note To Japan on Oil

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—The United States today sent a note to the Japanese government reiterating its protest against the Manchoukuan oil monopoly as a violation of existing treaty provisions and in conflict with the "open door" policy in the Far East.

Undersecretary Phillips announced that Ambassador Grew at Tokyo had been instructed to inform the Japanese foreign office that the United States considered the Manchoukuo monopoly, which became effective April 10, violated treaties to which Japan and the United States are signatories and also Japan's and Manchoukuo's pledges that "the open door" would permit equal opportunity in far eastern trade to all nations.

The American reiteration of several previous protests to Japan is understood to have been based on this government's opposition to the setting up of a monopoly in oil which might be extended to other products in the Far East.

ARMY FLYER WAS KILLED IN CRASH TAYLOR THURSDAY

LIEUT. PAUL B. WILSON OF MARCH FIELD EN ROUTE TO BARKSDALE FIELD

TAYLOR, Texas, April 18.—(AP)—Lieutenant Paul Boyer Wilson, 26, of March Field, Riverside, Calif., was killed almost instantly here today when his plane crashed near the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad station.

Wilson flew across town and then turned back, evidently learning that something was wrong with the plane and seeking a place to land.

Taylor residents who saw the crash said the plane "spun like a top" as Wilson attempted to bring it down in a plowed field. When it was within about 50 feet of the ground, the pilot's straps broke and Wilson was thrown from the ship.

The young officer's legs were broken and his skull crushed. He

Tennessee House Smashes Attempt Impeach Governor

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 18.—(AP)—The house today smashed an effort to impeach Governor Hill McAlister by a vote of 90 to 1.

Only Representative R. E. Little, author of the impeachment resolution, voted for it.

The house was thrown into an uproar during consideration of the resolution and two members came almost to a physical clash.

Representative Brown of Hick*man*, after the resolution was killed moved to "instruct the clerk to make no mention of this damnable proceeding upon the journal of the house."

The motion carried unanimously.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN ON COUNTY WIDE BASIS WILL BE LAUNCHED MONDAY; ALL ASKED PARTICIPATE

Sponsored by the civic activities committee of the Corsicana Chamber of Commerce and backed by the same organizations who recently completed a noteworthy beautification program, Corsicana and Navarro county as a whole are scheduled to start Monday on county-wide clean-up campaign to "bring the back yards in keeping with the front views."

"Everything spick and span—for every man" has been made the slogan for the drive from April 22 to April 27, and through the concerted efforts of the citizenry of the entire territory a noteable improvement in the appearance of every community is anticipated.

Plans for the campaign were inaugurated at the final meeting of the county beautification committees, and representative groups from all communities pledge their best efforts to the eradication of eyesores and to the cleaning up of all sidestreets, alleys, and other unsightly places.

Many of the communities have completed their plans for the campaign and will be ready to start Monday morning.

In Corsicana, Dr. R. C. Curtis, street and sanitary commissioner, reported that all of the employees of his departments would co-operate to the utmost extent in an effort to get the city in perfect condition, and that after the special campaign he would devote his efforts toward keeping it in the same status.

Citizens who collect large amounts of trash and junk after the regular weekly collection is made by the sanitary department trucks are asked to call the office of the sanitary department in the city hall and the matter will be attended to as promptly as possible. The telephone number is 2108.

Garden clubs and a number of other Corsicana organizations are making their plans for the co-operative movement.

Fults Returned To State Prison Parole Revoked

DALLAS, April 18.—(AP)—Ralph Fults, former companion in outlawry of Raymond Hamilton, was on his way back to the Texan penitentiary at Huntsville today to serve the seven remaining years of a ten-year sentence assessed in 1934 for robbery.

Texas rangers Fred McDaniel and Sid Kelso left the Dallas county jail at 10 a. m. with Fults. They carried a copy of an order issued by Governor James V. Allred revoking a parole granted the convict by former governor, Miriam A. Ferguson.

While Fults was taken to the penitentiary to serve out a sentence already assessed, officers also said that he would be held there pending removal to Mississippi.

Under Harboring Charge.

SHERMAN, Texas, April 18.—(AP)—A hearing in federal court was set today for Otis Morris of Denton county, charged with harboring Ralph Fults while he was a fugitive from a federal indictment.

Morris was arrested at Denton yesterday after Fults was captured and the harboring charge was filed here.

RELICS OF CHRIST'S FINAL DAYS ON EARTH VENERATED BY DEVOUT ROMANS AND PILGRIMS

By A. E. STUNTZ
Associated Press Foreign Staff.

ROME, April 18.—(AP)—Christ's crucifixial moan "I thirst!" was echoed today in the hearts of thousands of devout Romans and pilgrims who saw part of the sponge said to have been lifted to the Saylors lips as he died.

The relic was displayed at St. John Lateran Bascillica as part of Rome's religious celebration of Holy Thursday. The pilgrims from far and near also venerated at St. John Lateran a table believed to have been used at the Lord's last supper.

At St. Peter's they saw two skulls reputed to be those of St. Peter and St. Paul and a portion of the pillar on which it is believed Christ was scourged.

Pope Pius entered the annual mourning period with a prayer of gratitude on his lips. He felt justified in declaring the war clouds recently hovering over Europe have been at least temporarily dispelled.

This view the Pontiff communicated yesterday to Bishop James E. Kearney of Salt Lake City, whom he assured the European situation in the last few days since the Stresa conference was improved.

Tourists in Rome today who were lucky enough to be within the basilicas and churches heard the "Gloria in Excelsis," a tremendous paen of choral religious ecstasy. Those on the street could

LAVAL PLANS COMPLETION RUSSO-FRENCH MUTUAL ASSISTANCE TREATY

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Associated Press Foreign Staff.

GENEVA, April 18.—(AP)—Statesmen of Europe turned today from denunciation of Germany's violation of the Versailles treaty to the negotiation of new pacts intended to guard against future war.

Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, who played a leading part in yesterday's criticism by the League of Nations council of the Reich's unilateral abrogation of the treaty's military clauses, returned to Paris to press plans for concluding a mutual assistance pact with Soviet Russia.

He took along a tentative draft of the agreement which he negotiated here with Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs. The draft was to be submitted to the French cabinet

HOUSE REJECTED ATTEMPTS ALTER SECURITY MEASURE

TOWNSEND PLANS AND RAISING OF FEDERAL PAYMENTS ARE ALL DEFEATED

By CLARENCE M. WRIGHT
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, April 18. (AP)—Rallying strongly behind the administration's social security bill, the house today voted down a number of proposals to liberalize its provisions, including the Townsend old age pension plan.

This was rejected 206 to 56.

Then the Greenway amendment to increase from $15 to $20 a month the federal contribution to old age pensions was turned down 165 to 87.

Next the Lunden bill to grant minimum federal pension of $10 a week, plus $3 for each dependent, to all unemployed or helpless was defeated 204 to 52.

In this first test of administration strength to prevent rewriting of its social security program, the Townsend plan lost on a 206 to 56 standing vote.

Only 20 minutes of debate preceded the ballot. Included was an exchange between Representative McGroarty (D-Calif) who introduced the Townsend bill and Representative O'Connor (D-NY).

McGroarty struck back at O'Connor's remarks that some members were "playing politics with human misery."

"I don't think even the republicans would do that," the Californian said.

[illegible]SIDENTS OF NATION'S DUST [illegible]OWL LOOKING HOPEFULLY FOR RAINS FALLING ON ALL SIDES

By The Associated Press

Farmers and stockmen of the nation's dust bowl looked hopefully today for a share of the spring rains which were falling on nearly all sides of the sector.

Light showers and sprinkles invaded scattered parts of the affected area, but the fall was far short of the amount needed to settle the dust and supply moisture with which to start spring crops and revive the grass lands. Over most of the sector—embracing parts of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, and Colorado—a dust haze still lingered along with tantilizing clouds.

There was hope in showers which fell Wednesday at Scott City, Kas., and Syracuse, Kas., and dust-laden sprinkles at Dodge City, Kas., and Beaver, Okla. Early today a promising storm cloud was moving down the Arkansas river valley in Colorado. It left both rain and snow along the upper reaches of the stream.

A heavy fall of snow on the slopes of Pikes Peak relieved an acute water shortage at Colorado Springs.

From the east showers came near the affected area. Blackwell, Okla., had 1.7 inches of rain, and there were showers to the north as far as Beloit, Kas.

In Morton county, Kansas, the standing order was:

"No rain, no school."

Acting upon the request of parents, who feared that school bus-was universally abused and that the state was losing thousands of dollars in revenue annually.

Numerous instances have been found where stamps were re-used and some where beer was sold without stamps. It was estimated the change would yield approximately $500,000 additional yearly.

The house refused to decrease the wholesaler's license tax from $100 to $50 and the retailer's licenses from $50 to $25. Similar fate met attempts to increase the per barrel tax from $1.50 to $2 and $1.75.

Bills to clarify the motor fuel and cigarette tax laws were delayed temporarily to permit the amendments.

Senate Approves Bill.

The senate approed submission, 27 to 1, of a proposed constitutional amendment to authorize legislation for temporary committal of mentally sick to state eleemosynary institutions for not more than 90 days without necessity of the patient being adjudged insane by a jury.

The senate also adopted house resolutions to designate March 4 as 'Roosevelt" day and to petition congress to equalize the processing tax and promulgate tariff regulations to protect American cotton from foreign competition.

Senators agreed to start consideration Tuesday of a revised house bill to halt wastage of natural gas in the Panhandle field and to equalize rights of producers and owners.

The bill as rewritten by Senator Clint Small of Amarillo held approval of the senate state affairs committee.

Ranger-Artist Honored.

J. M. (Tex) Moore of Henrietta was designed "Cowboy Artist of Texas" by senate adoption of a house resolution. Paintings of the 70-year-old cowboy and former Texas Ranger have "perpetuated and glorified the achievements of the Western cowhand," the resolution stated, to such an extent "he could be called the dean of all western landscape artists."

The senate also adopted a house resolution urging congress to amend the interstate commerce act to prohibit movement of cigarettes in interstate commerce into any state unless the cigarettes bore tax revenue stamps of the state, and to enact a law to prohibit counterfeiting of cigaret tax stamps.

Illegal sale and interstate traffic in non-stamped cigarettes, the resolution stated, resulted in an annual loss of more than $3,000,000 to Texas.

Court Is Continued.

The house passed a senate bill (248) to continue for two years a special district court for Polk, Montgomery and San Jacinto counties and another senate bill (462) to prohibit sale of goods manufactured outside of Texas with prison labor and to restrict sale of Texas prison products to the state and political subdivisions.

An appropriation of $30,000 for each year of the next biennium to support the state planning board was approved by the senate as an amendment to the biennial departmental appropriation bill. An attempt to reduce the amount to $10,000 annually was defeated 20 to 6.

The first four amendments adopted to the appropriation bill added $164,200 to the senate finance committee's total of $12,471,638. As passed by the house, the bill would appropriate $11,691,142, compared to $11,572,800 provided for the current biennium.

Ten per cent salary raises were included in the senate bill. The house increased a few but cut [illegible] others.

[illegible]ans for the banking [illegible]ent were almost doubled [illegible]ate amendments added [illegible] than $100,000 for the two-[illegible]eriod.

Strengthening Bills Considered

[illegible]STIN, April 18.—(AP)—A se[illegible] of bills which sponsirs said [illegible] raise millions of dollars in [illegible]ue without additional taxes [illegible]nued to engross the legislature today.

[illegible]ey would attempt to prevent [illegible]ions in the cigarette, beer, [illegible]line and gross production tax [illegible] and levy a tax on wholesal[illegible] and retainers of medicinal [illegible]iskey.

Asserting they possibly would [illegible]eld $17,500,000 in revenue, Acting [illegible]overnor Walter Woodul asked passage in 48 hours. A short time later both houses suspended parliamentary inhibitions in order to consider them.

The first contest developed over efforts to increase the tax on oil production from two to six cents per barrel, the proposal being offered in the form of an amendment to a bill on a point of order.

Unusual interest centered on the tax situation because no revenue raising measures had been enacted at this session while liberal appropriations had been made, and because many believed a special session hinged on provision for reducing the state's deficit, or at least stopping any increase.

Allred Angle.

There also was interest in the fact the sudden activity over the tax bills occurred during the absence in Washington of Governor James V. Allred. The house declined to suspend its rules to permit consideration of the sulphur, chain store and income taxes which Governor Allred has favored.

The governor was expected to return tomorrow. Meanwhile, Woodul arranged a flight to Oklahoma City, to talk over the interstate oil compact just ratified with Governor E. W. Marland, and Senator Ken Regan of Pecos, president pro tem of the senate, was in line to be Texas' third chief executive in one week.

A storm which had brewed over the proposed opening of coastal waters from Galveston to Point Isabel to commercial fishing puffed away last night.

The house game and fish committee reported favorably a bill opening only certain waters in Aransas, Refugio and Neuces counties, which made it a local instead of a general bill. A subcommittee said commercial and sport fishermen in those counties had agreed with the agreement they hoped for passage of a restricted bill, but they believed no bill could be passed without such agreement.

The waters opened were about one-half of Copano Bay and all of Neuces Bay. Use of nets during the spawning season of trout, the months of April, May and June, was forbidden.

Another subject of controversy, the bill creating a department of public safety, was sent to a conference committee after the senate refused to concur in house provisions. A criminal identification and fingerprinting bureau would be established.

Because of several amendments added in the senate, the house $10,000,000 rural school aid and equalization bill also faced the probability of going to a conference committee.

House Passed Bills.

The house sent 20 more bills to the senate in a night session to lighten the load of its heavily burdened calendar but adding greatly to the congestion in the senate.

One of the bills would prohibit employment of persons under 18 in dispensing beer. Sponsors said the existing law was ambiguous and that before a conviction could be had it was necessary to prove beer dispensing was the principal business of the establishment.

The house also passed bills to extend the Jim Crow law to busses, to require that only whole milk be used in the manufacture of powdered milk, to provide for examination of statewide mutual assessment associations by the insurance commission and to authorize the highway department to remove and reconstruct bridges blocking construction of the intracoastal canal.

Planning Board Meets

AUSTIN, April 18.—(AP)—The new state planning board, which Governor James V. Allred has termed a cornerstone of his recovery program, held its first formal meeting today.

The meeting was called by Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann and was presided over by Hull Youngblood of San Antonio, elected vice-chairman, in the absence of W. M. Massie of Fort Worth, chairman.

Vincent M. Miles, regional diarector of the national resources board, and Marvin C. Nichols of Fort Worth, chairman of the old state planning board, made short talks.

The law under which the board was created was discussed.

JOHNSON

the senate's investigation into the operations of NRA, prior to the drafting of new legislation.

He presented the committee an 88-page statement of his views on NRA and its future, together with elaborate charts to bear out his contentions.

Most of his statement was written in a factual, dispassionate vein, but occasionally he lapsed into the vernacular, and picturesque language which made him famous as the "crack-down" head of the blue eagle organization.

Huge Crowd Present.

The huge crowd assembled to hear Johnson forced the finance committee to use the largest assembly room in the senate office building—the caucus room.

Reviewing the developments in industry following the war, Johnson said they disclosed "a slow and implacable disintegration of the profit system, and especially of unregulated and uncontrolled operation thereof, as a reliable plan for keeping our people employed."

"When the structure smashed in 1929," he added, "it was not a sledge hammer cracking up a solid rock. It was the collapse of an empty shell.'

With this collapse, and the downward spiral which followed, Johnson said, only five types of concerns could survive. He named them as "the concern with the big war chest and a swollen surplus"; "the natural monopoly," "the dealers in indispensibles, "the sweatshop" and the ghoul—buyer and operator of bankrupt stocks and assets."

Trend of Economic System.

"This is where our economic system was trending from before the war and to its utter and complete collapse in March, 1933," he added. "This is what happened to us under the anti-trust acts, the federal trade commission, and the doctrine of laissez faire and it happened uninterruptedly and with no relieveing incident for a period of 25 years.

"I don't know a great industrial country that does not recognize the necessity for taking control of this tendency which is going on all over the world.

"I freely admit the faults and errors of the NRA and will fight as hard as anybody to correct them. But it was the first intelligent attempt ever made by this government to check this tendency. I won't admit its failure. Especially I won't accede to any madness that would remove its control and go back to the unregulated condition of futility that preceded it."

Must Retain Control.

Johnson added that "we have got to keep control of this economic machine and prevent and turn back many of the tendencies of the past 25 years."

Conceding many mistakes in his administration of NRA, Johnson told the senators he was "inclined to agree" with the criticism by Senator Nye (R-Ind) that the recovery administration was preserving monopolies in the code structure.

"But I do contend, and I think I can show, that such faults as are are were due to my bad administration rather than bad law, that many if not most of these errors of mine are in process of effective correction.

"I am very sure that to destroy NRA because there are these creaky joints in its structure would be like burning down your house to get rid of a few rats in the attic."

Smmarizing the record of NRA, Johnson said it had "succeeded in arresting the destruction of the little fellow in business," but he admitted it had not "fully insured the rights intended to be granted to labor."

Brought Vast Good.

"Where has NRA failed as to the small enterprise, labor and consumer?" Johnson asked.

"I think that to all it has brought a vast balance of good. In each it has brought some harm and some of the harm is avoidable. The little fellow has suffered from having to pay higher wages but he has benefitted by being preserved. To the extent that he has been hurt by bad administration, we must cure that.

"Labor has been immensely helped. It has been hurt by not getting the benefit intended by section 7 (a). We should cure that.

"The consumer has been helped by being given the power to consume at all. He was on the verge of losing it.

"On the whole my conclusion is clean up NRA—don't destroy it. Let us scrub our infant offspring vigorously, but let us not throw the baby down the drain pipe with the dirty water."

Defends Fair Practice.

Defending the fair practice provisions of the codes against charges that they created monopoly, Johnson said something of this nature was necessary to make it possible for industry to accept minimum standards on wages and maximum hours.

He contended fair trade practice control could not be restricted to the natural resource industries.

Discussing whether NRA should attempt regulation within a state, Johnson said "we are faced by a new condition that transcends any legal theory." NRA, he added, "taught beyond question that John Marshall was right when he said 'in commerce we are one people.'"

The former administrator said he had no doubt the courts would uphold the government in regulating commerce within a state and that "the only question is a practical one; how far it should go in doing so."

Should Invade States.

"My answer to my own question is that NRA should attempt intrastate regulation through codes wherever it is clearly necessary to protect interstate commerce and not otherwise, and that it is not so necessary in service industries."

Johnson said "price fixing under NRA is, just a big bugaboo." He asserted only nine codes contained any provisions for price fixing or rate control.

Turning away from NRA proper, Johnson said "one of the most valid criticisms against the whole new deal is the fact that from time to time it has sorely lacked co-ordination."

"One agency," he added, "has been vigorously pushing a policy in one direction, while a co-ordinate agency has just as vigorously been pushing a conflicting policy in a diamentrically opposite direction."

Johnson contended that due to lack of co-ordination in the administration NRA was "in an impossible situation with regard to enforcement" because the federal trade commission and the justice department did not vigorously enforce NRA's provisions.

Former NRA Head Is Called as Witness

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson was called by a senate committee today to tell what he thinks NRA should be like in the future. The picturesque former administrator of the Blue Eagle was the final witness in the finance committee's investigation of the recovery law administration.

Thus he had a chance not only to tell his idea of what legislation should be drawn to extend NRA but to throw back some of the "dead cats" tossed at his administration by previous witnesses.

For the six weeks that the inquiry has been going on, Johnson has been closely following the testimony. He was loaded with arguments designed to show that NRA has been beneficial to the country, to industry and to labor. Those close to him said he also had a specific plan for revising the recovery law.

Despite his assertion that NRA is "dead as a dodo," Johnson's friends said he was far from convinced that the whole experiment resented as feling that with ceshould be abandoned. He was reprtain changes it could be of great value to recovery.

Critics of Johnson and his administration contend, however, that the former NRA administrator does not look at the problem from their viewpoint. They say he believes the era of small business is over and that only big business can survive.

Next week the senate committee will turn to the now crystallizing issue of the bonus before starting to frame the new NRA bill, but that will only cause a delay of a few days.

Collections in 1934 by months:

January—$191,088.76.

March—$7,993.25.
Total $202,223.01.
Autos—$66,175.43.
Grand Total—$268,398.44.

There were 446 more automobile registered this year and 45 more trucks.

The grand total for 1935 would have been increased to a larger margin had this been a political year as the poll tax payments this year were approximately 4,000 less than in 1934. Poll taxes are $1.75 each and the missing polls would have amounted to $7,000, which would have made the increase sligthly in excess of $100,000 for 1935.

Contest Filed Against Young Senator-Elect

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—A contest against the election of Rush D. Holt as democratic senator from West Virginia was filed in the senate today on behalf of Henry D. Hatfield, Republican, who opposed Holt last November.

The protest claimed Holt was ineligible for the seat because he has not yet reached the age of 30 required by the constitution.

He will be 30 on June 19 and he has refrained from presenting himself for the oath until that time.

self and the British statesman, Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, and Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal.

Allegedly Double-Crossed.

In foreign office quarters, resentful remarks were made to the effect that Sir John merely drew the Germans out and got them to lay their cards on the table, then used this knowledge against Germany by Geneva.

Under-Secretary Von Buelow also received the Italian ambassador yesterday as the German government is desirous of knowing from England and Italy, as guarantors of the Locarno treaty, whether they still consider their duties two-sided or whether, as a result of the Stresa conference, they feel obligated hereafter to help enforce the Locarno treaty only if it should be violated by Germany.

Both ambassadors assured Von Buelow their governments would quite as loyally fulfill their duties as guarantors if France violated the Locarno treaty as they would if Germany did.

Von Buelow replied that he tool: cognizance of these assurances "with satisfaction."

Nazi leaders forecast that Hitler, stung to the quick by the council's action, might adopt any or all of these courses:

1. Refuse to enter any peace pact proposed so far.
2. Withdraw his offer to join in the western European defensive air pact.
3. Flatly refuse to return to the League of Nations.

It was admitted, however, that the reichswehr, fearing a chain of anti-German military alliances, conceivably might influence der fuehrer to continue negotiations to keep Germany from total isolation.

The reichsfuehrer, who has been at his Bavarian mountain retreat, was expected to return to Berlin today to decide on his course of action and probably go into immediate consultation with his cabinet.

Wilhelmstrasse officials were particularly chagrined at Poland's action in supporting the tri-power resolution of condemnation. Warsaw reports, however, that Poland still intends to remain friendly with the nazis, encouraged officials to believe that Hitler for this reason, would be prompted to express himself with especial vigor when he replies to the Geneva resolution.

On fact stands out in all the comment: Germany feels she was deceived in her negotiations with the three western European powers and that, therefore, Grat Britain's prestige as a mediator on the continent has virtually been destroyed.

Asked directly if he would head a third party, the governor replied:

"The real fight in this country is Americanism versus communism mixed up with some kind of crazy 'gimme'."

The governor has been a repeated critic of the national administration policies. He has centered his attack on Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

The governor was in his office mapping a campaign which he plans to make through the cotton belt attacking the cotton processing tax. He expects to start this tour within the next two weeks.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—House leaders vigorously condemned today the assertions by Governor Talmadge of Georgia that President Roosevelt is a radical and that there would be a third party next year.

Representative O'Connor (D-NY) rules committee chairman said:

panies doing business in Manchoukuo—was sent to Japan as the sponsor of the new empire of Manchoukuo, which is not recognized by this country.

The oil companies contend that their large investments in Manchoukuo are imperilled by the new monopoly law, and that they would lose the future profitable business which had been built up over many years in that country before it became an independent state.

The Netherlands and Great Britain made similar representations to Japan in the interest of British and Dutch oil companies.

Japan, in answer to all three nations, said that since Manchoukuo was an independent state the representations should have been sent to that government, and that Japan could not interfere.

The Japanese also explained that since the United States did not recognize Manchoukuo it could hardly expect that government to observe any pledges of equality of opportunity which might have been made.

In addition to representations by the government, interested representatives of American oil companies have held a series of conferences with Japanese authorities in an effort to formulate an amicable solution of the problem. It is understood, however, that the negotiations in Tokyo recently broke down.

SECURITY

toward old-age was later abruptly halted, 144 to 80.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—Democratic leaders prepared today to drive their huge majority promptly over the divided house groups which sought to write drastic changes in the administration's social security bill.

So sure were they of success that the ways and means committee, for the time at least, had discarded a tentative thought of offering a "sop" to would-be liberalizers in the form of an amendment increasing the federal government's contribution toward old-age pensions.

The dissenters were generally in two classes: The Republicans, who on the whole thought it inadvisable to levy the new taxes the bill calls for; and the widely-separated groups which wanted to put the whole task of old-age pensions on the federal government.

The Republicans were unable, in a conference last night, to agree on everything they wanted their leaders to do. So they left to the leaders a final decision on the motions to be made.

One Republican motion was assured—to eliminate the sections of the bill levying taxes which reach 6 per cent by 1949 for old-age annuities. Democrats, terming that the heart of the bill, predicted overwhelming defeat for the G. O. P. on that.

Townsend Plan.

Rep. Monaghan (D-Mont) planned to start the voting battle today by offering the Townsend plan as an amendment. He conceded ahead of time that on a rising vote only 54 to 55 members would ballot with him and on a teller vote, 85, while he needed more than 200, so Townsendites generally conceded their plan was dead for this session.

The administration spokesmen made last-minute surveys, which showed that their biggest worry probably would be caused by a woman member who is a close friend of President and Mrs. Roosevelt — Rep. Isabella Greenway (D-Ariz.)

Mrs. Greenway had drafted an amendment which would tax all financial transactions and all gifts above $500 two per cent and set aside 1 1-2 per cent of income taxes collected at existing rates. Where the administration's bill limited federal contributions for old-age pensions to $15, and required dollar-for-dollar maintaining by states, Mrs. Greenway's method proposed a $25 maximum and five federal dollars for each state dollar.

BULGARIA

Previous to today's action, a quarrel had been raging between the Gueorguieff group and the government over the participation of army officers in the government. The army itself has been split on the question.

The government issued a communique stating its prisoners would be interned indefinitely on the island of Saint Anastasia in the Black Sea near Burgas.

The government communique stated the arrests were made for violation of a decree against political party activity. Zankoff was accused of failing to stop his socialist-populist movement.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 18.—(AP)—Several political leaders, including at least one former prime minister, were arrested today in a surprise raid ordered by the minister of the interior.

WACO PRESBYTERY IN SESSION WEDNESDAY AT KERENS CHURCH

KERENS, April 17.—(Spl.)—"Christ was nailed to the cross by hate, bigotry, intolerance, greed, selfishness, and sin, and He can never get out of the tomb until men give up the spirit that was responsible for His death on Calvary," President Raymond H. Leach of Trinity University declared in an Easter message delivered to the Waco presbytery at its meeting in Kerens Wednesday morning.

"We sometimes mistake the real reasons for Christ's sacrifice," the college president continued. "He did not die to demonstrate to a few people that there is life after dea[illegible] Probably th[illegible] real reason [illegible]sire [illegible] men to [illegible] of [illegible] vine [illegible] the supren[illegible] of th[illegible] man brotherhoo[illegible] [illegible]ly men can [illegible] away the ston[illegible] from the sepu[illegible]re that keep Christ from re[illegible]ing over the na[illegible]tions and in the hearts of peo[illegible]ple today."

President Leach told his listeners that Christ is being daily crucified and entombed by those who should be his followers. All the forces that put Christ to death are present and active in our world today, he said.

"The church of Jesus Christ has a stupendous task in the world reconstruction program," he continued. "If the church is not to become leader of nations, business, education—leading away from selfishness, injustice, oppression, and indifference to human sufferings—then let the church be buried. War with its background of narrow nationalism, assumption of racial superiorities, reliance on force for human progress must be done away with by all those daring to follow in the footsteps of the Master."

RESIGNATION OF CITY ENGINEER TENDERED EFFECTIVE JULY FIRST

W. W. M'CLENDON, AFTER TWELVE YEARS IN CITY SERVICE, WILL QUIT

Following is a copy of the resignation of W. W. McClendon, city engineer, effective July 1, which was scheduled to be presented to the regular meeting of the city commission this afternoon for formal action:

Corsicana, Texas,
April 16, 1935.

To the Honorable J. S. Murchi[illegible], mayor, and Board of Commissioners, City.

Gentlemen: With the kindliest of feelings I herewith submit my resignation to take effect July 1st, on completion of the relief projects already started.

For the past twelve years I have served you as your engineer and in addition, the last few years, as supervising head of all departments except police and fire.

Twelve years ago, when I took office, I inherited a fee system from which the city secured part of its operating revenues.

I was not in favor of this system at that time but, obeying instructions from the governing body, the provisions of such were carried out thus bringing this department, through no fault of its own in ill repute from which I fear it has never recovered though the system was abolished several years ago.

At no time have I been swerved by public opinion from performing the duty or duties assigned me by any commission, mayor, or commissioner and out of loyalty to the governmental officials, and a desire to co-operate in every manner possible, I have, without shifting responsibility, assumed the criticisms brought about by performing numbers of duties assigned to me which did not rightfully belong there by charter provision.

This no doubt has been an error of judgment on my part but I have no regrets.

You, who are familiar with governmental functions, know that no one man would have a right to dictate policies without instructions from those in authority. Neither would he have a right to expend funds unless those charged by the people with the custody of such funds had authorized expenditures.

As your water superintendent it would appear that the blame for discontinuing water service for non-payment of bills has been placed mostly on my shoulders. Permit me to say that policy was fixed by those in authority and I was charged with the duty of enforcing same.

I discontinued service to all alike because I do not subscribe to the theory of cutting off one person who really cannot pay and continuing service of those who can to gain their political favor.

This was an error of judgment on my part but I am gratified to be able to return the department to you practically void of the many thousand dollar delinquency I inherited.

While the department today is far from being the m[illegible]n institution it should be both from a [illegible]eping as well as an operating standpoint, marked progress [illegible] made. [illegible] of the sanitary de[illegible] duties of which [illegible] reased a thousand [illegible] in the [illegible]t two years brought [illegible]ut by c[illegible]ning, properly dis[illegible]ing and satisfactorily disposal of the refuse from nearly two [illegible]usand outdoor toilets each [illegible] are in good condition and [illegible] part of the work for the first [illegible]e in the history of the city, [illegible] been made self sustaining. [illegible] street, park, and cemetery [illegible]artments, the others for which [illegible]ted as superintendent are also [illegible] good condition and their as[illegible] several thousand dollars more [illegible] formerly.

[illegible]nce the beginning of the relief [illegible]ram I have been able to se[illegible] with virtually no cost to the [illegible] more improvements of a per[illegible]ent nature than nearly any [illegible] of this size in the state. The [illegible]fulness of these and the benefits to be derived therefrom will [illegible] reflected in the years to come.

[illegible]r the future program the [illegible]dation has already been laid [illegible] the way paved for you to secure funds with which to do, [illegible] practically no cost to either [illegible] city or property owner all [illegible]essary and needed resurfacing [illegible] streets as well as some additional graveling and the completion of all needed storm sewers [illegible] culverts. Also for adding [illegible]e improvements at Lake Hal[illegible] by building with no materi[illegible]ost to the [illegible] tennis courts [illegible] other re[illegible]ational facilities [illegible] completi[illegible] meandering [illegible] around [illegible] The relo[illegible]on of the [illegible]wage disposal [illegible]t, which [illegible] adjacent to the [illegible]way an[illegible] elimination of [illegible]e and h[illegible] crossings with[illegible]he city [illegible] been predict[illegible]

[illegible]t in a[illegible] capacity, but [illegible] tax[illegible]zen of Cor[illegible]na, and [illegible]y interested [illegible] expans[illegible] development, I trust you will be able to bring these to a successful culmination. In doing s[illegible] find it necessary to [illegible] equivalent of many hun[illegible] rate employes each week [illegible] been my unfortunate lot [illegible] two years, I want you each to know that I, as a citizen, shall not lend an ear to the unjust and unkind criticisms that will be made.

I am [illegible]e than glad to be able [illegible] infor[illegible] I am returning to [illegible] department of [illegible]ich I [illegible] had charge, free [illegible] any [illegible]iness that might [illegible] been [illegible]d from an operation stan[illegible] and with a well [illegible] smo[illegible]ing organization void of friction and dissension which is in marked contrast to what it was a few years ago.

Requesting that you spread a copy of this resignation on your minutes and furnish the press with one I am submitting same, conscientiously feeling and believing that, during all these years, I have given you value received and the best that was in me.

Respectfully,
WILLIAM W. McCLENDON,
Engineer and Superintendent.

SPECIALLY DESIGNED ENVELOPES * * * * * * * * * FOR NAVARRO HOTEL ADVERTISE * * * * * * * * * CORSICANA AND THE CENTENNIAL

Specially designed envelopes with a graphic representation of a resume of Texas history as well as the dates for the Texas Centennial and the fact that Corsicana was the birthplace of the movement, are being distributed to its guests by the Navarro Hotel through the courtesy of John M. Sibley, manager.

The custom was started several weeks ago and hotel officials report that a very favorable reaction has been received from the traveling public.

The envelope bears the inscription "Navarro Hotel, Corsicana, Texas," in the customary position in the upper lefthand corner and then along the left end and bottom is inscribed "We're telling the World via Mail It's Our 100th Anniversary—Texas Centennial 1936." In a prominent place along the right edge of the panorama are the words "Texas—1836-1936—Corsicana — Centennial Birthplace."

The design enclosed in the inscription includes a scene from the surrender of Santa Anna to Sam Houston at San Jacinto, the state seal, the Alamo, a covered wagon caravan, Spanish soldiers, the six flags under which Texas has served, portraits of Houston and Stephen F. Austin, and the Lone Star Flag in heraldic shape bearing the names of Bowie, Bonham, Crockett nad Travis, a buffalo, Indians, longhorn cattle, famous old brands of early Texas ranches and herds, along with the modern type of hogs, sheep and cattle; a view of the first capital at Austin in 1839, along with the present capitol building, bales of cotton, oil well derricks, and modern and ancient transportation vehicles.

The design was originated by Ben Taylor, and has been copyrighted by Utter and Son of Dallas and Fort Worth.

GOVERNOR

Regan's term will be so short," said former governor Hobby, "but perhaps it is just as well for him."

Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston suggested that Regan resign and other senators be elected at ten-minute intervals as president pro tem and resign, thereby giving each a shift as governor. Others wished him a "successful administration."

Administration Short.

His administration was to be a short one. Woodul intended to return to Texas within the day, giving Regan a term of only a few hours.

In the governor's office, Regan's first official act was to sign a bill of his colleague, Senator Claud Westerfeld of Dallas. It would place additional restrictions on the sale of estates of minors by guardians.

"I guess I am safe in signing it," he said, noting it was passed unanimously.

Exercising, he said, "what seems to be one of the prerogatives of an acting governor," he appointed eight lieutenant colonels on the governor's staff, sent a message to the legislature, granted an extradition and began a study of several clemency records.

Legislation Requested.

Legislation he requested would confer the power of eminent domain on all state and federal agencies and upon all corporations to acquire lands necessary for public works projects.

He signed as acting lieutenant governor a house bill to extend for two years the Rio Grande compact of Texas, Colorado and New Mexico and later approved it as acting governor. He was author of a similar senate bill.

Lieutenant colonels appointed were: Mark McGee of Fort Worth, former adjutant general; W. E. Bell of Pecos, oil man and Regan's business partner; Dorrance D. Roderick, publisher, and H. S. Hunter, editor of the El Paso Times; Tom Lea, El Paso attorney; David Frame, Houston oil man; J. V. Adams, San Antonio and McCamey oil man, and John R. Suman, Houston oil man.

died en route to a hospital.

Three men standing in the railroad yards said they barely had time to get out of the way of the falling plane. It missed the station only a few yards.

Papers found on Lieutenant Wilson did not reveal his destination or the purpose of the flight. The plane was demolished.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 18.—(AP)—Lieutenant Paul B. Wilson of March Field, Calif., who was killed in a plane crash near Taylor was en route to Barksdale Field, La., at the time of the accident, army air field officials here said. He left Kelly Field at 6 a. m.

Lieutenant Wilson was the author of the song "Cadet Dream Girl," which later became a nationally popular tune. He composed the piece while a student at Randolph Field here.

The lieutenant graduated from the primary school at Randolph Field in October, 1933, and from the advanced flying school at Kelly Field in February, 1934.

He was a native of Carlisle, Pa., and graduated from Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania in 1929. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wilson of Carlisle.

An ambulance plane was sent from Kelly Field for the body.

SPECIAL SESSION TEXAS LEGISLATURE BELIEVED IMMINENT

By CHARLES E. SIMONS

AUSTIN, April 17.—(AP)—A special session of the Texas Legislature immediately after the long regular sitting is a definite probability in the opinion of observers, unless the legislature in the remaining four weeks gives attention to important elements of the governor's program.

At this stage it is doubtful whether several of the enactments the governor requested will be given floor consideration in both houses and will die on the calendar. These include the administration demands for tax reform, repeal of the race track wagering law, public utility regulation and revision of law enforcement agencies.

Some of the governor's proposals will get through one house. Some even will get through both and into conference committee but administration leaders are apprehensive that a major portion will reach the executive office in the form desired by Governor Allred.

A look at the clogged calendars suggests that the administration measures are going to have a thorny path, especially since much of the program in highly controversial. In addition to the important routine of passing the appropriation bills each house will be called upon to pass on the favored legislation of its members.

Appropriation Bills.

Final action is lacking on the four major appropriation bills, only one of which, the judiciary, has reached conference. Several days will be required in each house to dispose of the bulky departmental appropriation bill and several more for a conference committee to compose differences. It generally is predicted the main budget bills will be rushed through in the closing days.

Should the legislature fail, or refuse, to consider fairly the administration's proposals the governor, certain members assert, would be justified in calling a special session. It was with this in mind that a resolution to adjourn the legislature sine die May 7, the end of the regular 120-day period, was offered and passed by the house with support of administration spokesmen. Action was postponed in the senate.

At a special session only subjects submitted by the governor may be considered. Unless he opened up too many both houses would be forced to take positive action for or against his proposals.

The argument is offered that the regular session could be continued a month at less expense than a special session since after May 7, members would draw only $5 a day. Administration supporters, however, do not believe extension of the regular session would lift the administration measures from the legislative morass.

OUTHFUL PAL OF RAY HAMILTON IS TAKEN EARLY TODAY

RALPH FULTS IS RUN DOWN BY DENTON POLICE AND MEEKLY SURRENDERS

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Staff Writer.

DENTON, April 17.—(AP)—Ralph Fults, minor member of the old Clyde Barrow-Bonnie Parker outlaw band and teammate of Raymond Hamilton in a recent Mississippi bank robbing foray, was captured near here today after a wild automobile chase.

Meekly the 24-year Collin county youth submitted to capture after he had tumbled his speeding machine into a ditch at the end of a blind road.

A pistol remained untouched in his belt as he clambered out of the car, raised his hands and cried:

"Don't shoot boys, I'm the man you want and I won't make any trouble."

Officers Luther Allen, Roy Moore and Sam Gentry of Denton, who had chased Fults four miles after spotting him near Denton, disarmed the cringing fugitive and brought him back here.

Admits His Identity.

He admitted his identity and after saying "I have nothing to beef about," launched into a long admission of recent crimes.

The trio of officers, who before daybreak started a hunt for Fults on a hunch he was in this section, passed Fults as he drove East towards Lake Dallas.

They recognized the youth by police photographs and swerved their automobile in pursuit. Twice they fired at him before he left the highway and sped down a lane on to "Millionaire's Island" a Lake Dallas pleasure resort extending out into the lake waters.

Fults skidded his machine into a ditch at the end of the road and surrendered.

"I had a revolver but it was under two shirts," he said later. "I couldn't reach it. Anyway, those three officers were a pretty good reason for not pulling my gun."

Fults admitted he helped Raymond Hamilton rob the Prentiss, Miss., bank of $1,100 recently. Hamilton since has been captured at Fort Worth and is awaiting execution at state prison May 10 for slaying a prison guard during a break.

He said Hamilton split the Prentiss loot with him. Fults said he had been shot in the back by officers who chased them in Mississippi and said he still had 60 buckshots in his back.

"That shot knocked me down but Ray picked me up and we got away in a stolen car" Fults said.

He denied having shot a woman and man during their escape in Mississippi.

Fults said he planned to rob the Prosper, Texas, bank in Collin county today. He said it was to have been a "one man job" and that after the robbery he had planned to go to Mineral Wells to rob an armory to obtain machine guns.

Fults was held in jail here until the arrival of Texas rangers. No immediate plans had been laid for his return to Mississippi to face bank robbery charges. A death sentence is possible under Mississippi laws for his participation of the robbery.

told officers he once ned Clyde Barrow, Bonnie and Hamilton for a brief in 1932.

s was fingerprinted upon turn here and City Marshal Knight announced the prints d.

ts admited he had been with ilton during recent Mississippi scapades, but declined to say itely that he teamed with in robbing the Prentis, Miss., several weeks ago.

amilton, recently captured at Worth, is now awaiting exeon at the state prison on May or slaying a prison guard.

Separated From Hamilton

ults told of separating with milton after they had changed othes at a Memphis, Tenn., hol several weeks ago. He said he ent to Louisville, Ky., and then aveled through Arkansas on a eturn trip to Texas.

He admitted having visited reltives at McKinney several nights go, saying "I outran 'em there" talking of his escape from ofcers.

He said he sped to Houston, tayed there a day and then came ack through North Texas into klahoma. He came back into exas two days ago and yesterday roamed about Dallas.

After spending the night at allas, Fults said he left there arly today and headed towards rosper, where he intended to rob bank.

"I have a car that will go 90 miles an hour and robbing that bank would have been easy," he said.

He admitted the machine he drove belonged to Dr. O. T. Mitchell of Renner, a small Dallas county community. He stole the car, he said, after he had kidnaped Cecil Howell, a Collin county youth, several days ago.

Fults, reported to have been wounded in Mississippi recently by a posse, had no visible wounds. Hamilton and Fults were credited with kidnaping and disarming a Mississippi posse.

District Court.

The Navarro county grand jury was still in session Thursday morning.

Arguments of the attorneys in the case of J. L. McElwrath vs. Midlothian Oil and Gin Company, damages, got under way in the district court Thursday morning following the delivery of Judge J. S. Callicutt's charge to the jury. Testimony was completed Wednesday.

Sheriff's Office.

Two Mexicans were lodged in jail Wednesday by Deputy Sheriffs J. M. Westbrook and Allen Galloway for alleged receiving and concealing stolen property. The arrests were made following a trip near Rodney, southwest Navarro county, by the local officers, a city officer from Dallas and a deputy sheriff from Waxahachie, with a Mexican prisoner arrested in Dallas in connection with the theft of an automobile which was reported "cached" near Rodney. The Mexican brought here from Dallas attempted to find the car he had hidden near Rodney but it had been moved and the two Mexicans arrested and put in jail here are thought to have moved the car and prevented the finding of the missing automobile.

BORAH PROPOSES TO PROHIBIT ALL LOANS EUROPEAN NATIONS

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—Senator Borah (R-Ida) today introduced a bill to prohibit any new public or private loans to foreign governments except those on the American continent, asserting any money loaned to Europe "is in aid of war."

The bill was referred to the foreign relations committe which already has before it proposals to restrict passports and credit extensions in time of war.

The Borah proposal provided a penalty of up to $100,000 and ten years' imprisonment for any person or firm making a loan to any government except those on this continent, but the prohibition would not apply to renewals or adjustments of existing indebetdness.

"The European governments are now preparing for war," he said. 'It may not come within the next two or three years, but the preparation is going on. Any money loaned to them is in aid of war."

Borah is a former chairman of the senate foreign relations committee.

CLUB TOURNAMENT.

Qualifying rounds for the annual Corsicana Country Clb golf championship will start Saturday, April 27, and will be concluded Friday, May 3, W. A. Lang, chairman of the tournament committee, announced Thursday morning. An entrance fee of $1 will be charged for this annual affair. Prizes will be provided and a dinner for all entrants will be given the night the qualifying rounds are completed.

The first round of elimination play in the various flights will be started Saturday, May 4.

Newton Burnett won the 1934 club title.

Chairman Lang stated Thursday that no gallery fee will be charged for the amateur-pro sweepstakes Monday when the Texas pros play with local amateurs and all golfers of Corsicana, whether members of the club or not, are invited to follow the matches.

Rogers and Astaire Dance In Roberta

Songs and dances to suit every mood are presented in "Roberta," RKO- Radio's de luxe picturization of the Jerome Kern musical hit, which stars Irene Dunne, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

One of the outstanding features of the colorful production is the spice and variety in the musical numbers. One song thrills the heart with tender romance. Another sets the feet to tingling and the pulse to pounding.

Astaire and Miss Rogers talk with their feet in the "I'll Be Hard to Handle" number, a red-hot taps routine. In another sequence they sway and swirl with incredible grace to the lovely strains of "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes." There is an amazement-compelling episode demonstrating the sensational "I Won't Dance" routine. A number of other sparkling novelties have been devised for hilarious surprises.

Lovely Miss Dunne, stunningly garbed, sings the hauntingly romantic "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" and several new hit melodies.

The picture opens with a prevue at the Palace Saturday night and runs through Tuesday.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY TEXAS INTERSCHOLASTIC LOOP MAY 3-4

AUSTIN, Texas, April 19.—(Spl.)—One thousand eager-eyed boys and girls from rural and high schools of Texas will throng the University of Texas campus May 3 and 4, to participate in the silver aniversary state meet of the Texas Interscholastic League. Having won through local, district, bi-district and regional competition, these youngsters represent the finest talent that exists in the state, Roy Bedichek, chief of the University Bureau of Public School Interests, pointed out. At the state meet, they will face competition in dramatics, journalism, athletics, public speaking events, typing and shorthand, Three-R's, and art.

Registration for the twenty-fifth annual state meet will begin at 2:30 Thursday afternoon, May 2. Actual business of the meet opens at 8 o'clock Friday morning, with rehearsals of the one-act plays. On Friday, the following events will take place: Track and field preliminaries; news writing, copy-reading, headline writings and proof-reading contests in journalism, and two sessions of the journalism conference; first round in boys' and girls' tennis singles and doubles; first round and semi-finals in boys' and girls' debate; both preliminaries and finals in extemporaneous speech; preliminaries in the typewriting contest; preliminaries and finals in boys' and school divisions; and presenta- girls' declamation, rural and high tion of one group of contestants in the one-act play.

Breakfast in the junior ballroom of the University Union Building on Saturday morning will precede the state meeting of league delegates, at which time changes in the constitution and rules of the league and other problems will be discussed.

The Saturday program will include the following events: Editorial writing contests in journalism; finals in typewriting and the contest in shorthand; the Three-R contest; the art contest; second group of one-act plays; semi-finals in boys' and girls' tennis, singles and doubles; final session of the journalism conference; finals in boys' and girls' debate; finals in track and field events, including the rural pentathlon; finals in tennis, boys' and girls' singles and daubles; and the final in the one-act play contest.

WESTERN STATES SEEK FUNDS FOR WATER RESERVOIRS

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—President Roosevelt received today a plea from five western states that federal loans be allocated for construction of three reservoirs and dams in that territory for flood control and water supply purposes.

A large delegation of senators, representatives and others asked the President to approve the Conchas dam in New Mexico at an estimated cost of $8,726,000; the Caddoa dam in Colorado, estimated to cost $7,981,400; and the Fort Reno dam in Oklahoma, estimated to cost $6,320,000.

"We sincerely feel a word of endorsement from you to these people will have the effect of heartening them in this, their hour of greatest distress in the history of this region," they said in a brief submitted to the President.

Governor Clyde Tingley of New Mexico and Governor Allred remained with the President after others left to add their approval in person. Upon leaving they declined to discuss their conversations but Governor Tingley remarked, with a smile, "those three projects are feasible."

LONG LEGISLATURE MOVES FOR CONTROL OF FEDERAL FUNDS

SENATE KILLED PEACE MOVE IN LONG'S "WAR" WITH FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

BATON ROUGE, La., April 18.—(AP)—The Louisiana legislature went past the half-way mark today in its speedy drive toward enactment of Huey Long's newest laws.

The bills giving Long control of expenditure of federal work relief funds, finances of local governing agencies and the state's election machinery were among those advanced for final passage by Saturday.

The house met briefly and quietly this morning, passed six bills making minor amendments to existing laws, and adjourned until 10:30 a. m. Saturday when it will concur in senate amendments to the score or more more Long-measures.

Immediately after adjournment of the house the senate finance committee took up the Long bills and gave them rapid-fire approval after Long personally "explained" them.

BATON ROUGE, La., April 18.—(AP)—After the state senate killed a peace move in Senator Huey Long's "war" with the national administration over supervision of PWA expenditures, the legislature settled down today to push his measures for control of federal work funds.

Long gave no intention of relaxing his fight with Washington over administration of PWA money in Louisiana.

One of his supporters, however, jolted the senate last night by proposing a plea to President Roosevelt and Secretary Ickes not to withhold work funds for the state. The upper chamber quickly turned thumbs down on the proposal, 23 to 7.

The senate's action started speculation in Washington as to the future course of Harry L. Hopkins, FERA administrator.

Hopkins has given no indicavtion as to his plans, but his action in naming a bitter Long foe, Senator Frank Peterman, to the post of state relief director was said in some quarters to mean he already has moved toward federalizing Louisiana relief.

Peterman's selection indicated a posible intention to ignore legislation favored by Long naming Gov. O. K. Allen as relief head.

Political Quarrel.

Senator John J. Wingrave of New Orleans introduced the peace resolution which described the dispute over the work funds as a "political quarrel." It asked that national officials refrain from "inflicting any punishment on the people of Louisiana," because of it.

Wingrave said it was reported that the federal government might withdraw the relief funds from Louisiana because of the "quarrel."

Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator, has threatened to cancel all money grants to Louisiana if Long's pending legislation goes through.

Senator Coleman Lindsey, administration leader, objected to the resolution.

"Whether the government withdraws the funds from Louisiana is its own business," he said. "I am not going to ask them to change their method of business."

Senator Long said his plan was for the legislature to wind up its session Saturday. He intends to leave at once for Washington after adjournment.

Hines Confirmed

AUSTIN, April 18.—(AP)—The senate today confirmed the appointment of Harry Hines of Wichita Falls for a six-year term as a member of the state highway commission.

Johnson Brings Out Highlights Recovery Plan

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—Some of Hugh S. Johnson's NRA views in brief:

On the whole: "It has brought a vast balance of good."

The little business man: "NRA has succeeded in arresting the destruction of the little fellow in business."

Labor: 'Has NRA fully insured the rights intended 'to be granted to labor? Candor compels me to answer this question 'No'."

Price Fixing: "Price fixing under NRA is just a big bugaboo."

Production Control: "If we can't regulate this economic engine, x x x the next step will be the abolition of the profit system, and page Mr. Stalin."

Monopoly: The anti-trust laws must "accommodate" necessary regulation.

RELIEF ADMINISTRATOR HOPKINS EXPECTED TO TAKE ACTION UPON PLANS OF LOUISIANA KINGFISH

By THOMAS J. HAMILTON, JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP)—With hostilities between Senator Long (D-La.) and Roosevelt men flaring into the open again, the capital watched today in the expectation that Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, may be the next to crack down on Long's newest plans.

So far Hopkins has refrained from saying anything about the news from Baton Rouge that a bill has been put forward to place relief money under the control of the state administration which Long directs through Governor O. K. Allen.

But the capital noted the assertion of Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator, that public works funds "won't be used to build up Senator Long's political machine" and recalled that Hopkins, too, had acted in the case of other states where he charged politics had become entangled with relief.

Hopkins was known to be following the Baton Rouge developments closely and was said to be saving his fire until he knows just what is to become of the relief bill in question.

Just what he might do if the relief measure passes was not disclosed. Ickes statement yesterday took the form of a threat to cancel all public works projects in Louisiana—a threat which brought from Long the reply that Ickes might "go slap damn to hell."

Once before Ickes had struck at the Long forces, holding up all non-federal Louisiana projects for sometime after the enactment of Louisiana's two-year debt moratorium act. The ban was lifted, however, when PWA lawyers found that the law would not interfere with repayment of project loans.

Although 98 per cent of relief in Louisiana has been paid for by the federal government, Louisiana received its April grant of $1,367,962. After Hopkins had demanded increased contributions, the state legislature recently authorized local taxes expected to bring in $2,400,000 for the care of the unemployables during the coming year.

PEOPLES WILL HAVE SPENDING OF LARGE PART OF BIG WORK RELIEF FUND AS PURCHASER MATERIALS

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP)—An authoritative source said today that material purchases expected to absorb $1,700,000,000 of the administration's work relief fund will be under the supervision of Rear Admiral Christian J. Peoples.

The 58-year-old naval officer had been mentioned previously as likely to obtain an important post in the President's job-making organization but information today was that the selection was considered certain.

Peoples, it was said, will be in complete charge of drafting regulations for material purchases which the Roosevelt administration says will provide employment for thousands of industrial workers in addition to the $3,500,000 to be taken off relief rolls.

Actual buying of supplies for work relief projects, this source asserted, will be handled in many instances by states and other agencies co-operating in the program. It was suggested, however, that some commodities needed in immense quantities — like cement—might be purchased centrally.

The assertion that Peoples will be in command of buying materials for work relief projects was one of a number of disclosures made in official circles.

Proposed changes in the rules of the civilian conservation corps, which is to be enlarged to include 600,000 men, were reported to be receiving serious considration.

Raising the maximum age limit for CCC enrolees from 25 to 28 years was one change said to be under study. Another was a plan to vary CCC wages according to living costs and private wage scale in different sections of the country. Still another was a proposed change in entrance requirements to permit enrollment of young men from "border line" families—those not on relief rolls but with little more than a subsistence income.

TRANS-PACIFIC AIR ROUTE

Another step in preparation for what promises to be one of the greatest chapters in air history will be taken this month: Pan-American Air Lines has announced that it will send out a ship to establish landing fields for its proposed trans-Pacific route.

As now planned, the first air line to the Orient will extend from a terminal at San Francisco to Honolulu, 2100 miles; thence to Midway Islands, 1150 miles; thence to Wake Islands, 1200 miles; thence to Gaum, 1450 miles; thence to Manila, 1500 miles, and to China. Though no congressional action has as yet been taken with respect to the appropriation of funds for air lines undertaking trans-oceanic services, Postmaster General Farley predicted in a recent report that the government would provide such aid.

The navy department has co-operated by putting the Wake Island group at the disposal of the Pan American Lines for landing field purposes. There is now under consideration by the federal communications commission an application from the company for permission to establish radio stations at Alameda, Cal., and in Aylaska, Hawaii, the Marietta Islands, Midway Islands and the Wake group.

It is now almost a hundred years since Richard Henry Dana, a young Harvard law student seeking a rest from an affection of his eyes, sailed around Cape to California and and then wrote his ic of the sea, Two s Before the Mast. en a young man from East travels to California today he can make the nd trip in a score of rs at the stick. Masters sailing vessels consumed ks in the 1830's. Before 1930's end, their great-ndsons will fly across American continent and across the Pacific in a w days.

ANOTHER SCRAP OF PAPER

Since the World war a popular superstition has been fostered to the effect that all treaties made before 1914 (except, of course, treaties to which the United States was a party) were wicked understandings conceived in iniquity and secretly born. Perhaps that popular superstition will help Benito Mussolini to laugh off a treaty which a pre-war Italian government signed in 1906.

That treaty, entered into by Great Britain, France and Italy, guaranteed the independence of Ethiopia as the only remaining independent African kingdom. Rome dispatches attribute to this treaty "a distinct cooling of the British attitude" toward Italy since the first of Il Duce's troops left for Africa.

Probably this cooling of British affection perplexes Mussolini. Il Duce, of course, has the most scrupulous regard for the sanctity of treaties in general, but this treaty is different. Wasn't it made away back in 1906, long before anyone had learned to give a Fascist salute? How can Great Britain and France expect Il Duce to remember all the annoying and embarassing engagements which stupid non-fascist governments made in Italy's behalf? Besides, Haile Selassie made faces at him first.

THE FAMILY PROBLEM

I've gone and bought her roller skates and Mother says to me:
"I wish you hadn't done it. I'll be worried constantly."
She's begging for a bicycle, but Mother shakes her head:
"I'll never know a minute's peace until she's safe in bed.
There are so many accidents!" says Mother with a sigh.
"But childhood has a right to bikes and roller skates," say I.

"You shouldn't get her things like that," says Mother unto me.
"Suppose she should get hurt some time, how dreadful it would be!"
"I know," I say, "but just the same I guess you will admit,
More dreadful would her childhood be if age should ruin it.
Why, she'd grow up at last to hate her mother and her dad
If we refused to give the things that make her childhood glad.

"Now, you quit worrying, Ma, because if once we make it clear
That she must always careful be, there won't be much to fear.
We can't get rid of danger howsoever hard we try,
But we can teach that child of ours just where the dangers lie.
We can't get rid of roller skates—that wouldn't be quite fair,
But we can teach her how to skate—and what is better—where."

THE PARAGON CITY

Newspapers have been printing pictures of a unique American city. It is a city that "has never felt the depression, has no poor people, no relief problems, and has never had an unemployed citizen."

This paragon is Boulder City, Nev., built as a by-product of Boulder Dam. It has succeeded so miraculously because the head of every family has been on the payroll of the United States government or of the contractor that built the dam.

Interest in the city comes not only from its romantic connection with the greatest of our federal power and irrigation projects, but from the fact that it was purely an artificial city, built to order by modern engineers and architects. The government has some other community-building enterprises under way, of an experimental nature, for subsistence homesteaders, city slum-dwellers and other economic victims. Boulder Dam was no such experiment. It was built in the desert because it had to be, to serve a national purpose.

It is now to be seen whether, with such an artificial origin, Boulder City will survive and grow when the dam project is entirely completed and the artificial support removed. Perhaps it will, because it will have unlimited power and water, the two great requirements of the region, at low cost.

TAX COMPLICATIONS

Taxation is acquiring the complications that usually accompany old age after profligate existence, as witness a telegram dispatched to Governor Earle of Pennsylvania by Governor Lafoon of Kentucky.

Governor Earle has been battling the Pennsylvania legislature for a tax on manufactured tobacco. Governor Earle also wants more state taxes for movies, gasoline, electricity, incomes, etc., etc., but with these the governor of Kentucky is not concerned.

Lafoon, however, in protesting the proposed tax on manufactured tobacco, declared it to be unjust to subject the main product of tobacco-raising states to a tax to support the government of non-tobacco producing states. He asserted it would be equally unfair for Kentucky to place a tax upon steel products or hard coal, the production of which is confined principally to one state, Pennsylvania.

Has Governor Lafoon developed the formula to end the taxation mania? Probably the point has not yet been reached where people will revolt—at the ballot box, of course—against the tax spenders. But wise politicians admit that the day is not far off.

DEATH RAYS IN THE AIR

The report that a German has invented a radio beam device capable of stopping an airplane's engine, seems to have brought only skeptical replies from American engineers.

For instance, Dr. John Hays Hammond, Jr., radio scientist, in an interview at his laboratories in Gloucester, Mass., said: "It is the same old story. The report has been cropping up like the seven years' plague every few years since and even before the World war. There is not enough energy available to transmit through the ether, and if there should be, mechanism of the airplane or other objects to be attacked could easily be shielded. It is one of those unscientific stories that keep cropping up."

That seems to express the opinion of engineers generally. They question the possibility, in the present state of radio engineering, to apply sufficient power to a ray to enable it to interfere with an airplane engine at any considerable height; they agree that, if German engineers have discovered a radio beam device still unknown in this country, the shielding of an airplane engine from it would be a simple matter.

Nevertheless, the Berlin story, whatever may be its merit or demerit from the standpoint of scientists, is interesting because it reflects the change of level on which military planning is now done. Back in the World war days we were accustomed to pictures showing the death beam directed against armies. But the war menace is no longer on land; it is in the air. Europe now desires a Locarno not for boundaries but for the unbounded air. So the new story presents the death ray as attacking the airplane engine and thus destroying the enemy's flying navy. Such a tale seems at least to reveal the potentialities for terribly breathless moments if another war comes.

FINGERPRINTING

Washington reports that fingerprinting is on the way to become fashionable. Of course, we all remember John D. Rockefeller, Jr., submitted to the process not so long ago.

And now it is stated that thousands of civilians are voluntarily adding their identification marks to the files of the record division at the capital. Civilian prints thus volunteered are placed on a special non-criminal file. They include many hundreds of prints of children who, because of the family's position, are in danger of kidnaping.

Still, all this voluntary submission to a process of filed identification, does not necessarily mean acquiescence to the suggestion of compulsory fingerprinting. To be sure, plans to that end have been discussed, but the average American does not readily adhere to the notion that he should be required to identify himself to government authorities, police or otherwise. He feels that it is an infrangement upon his liberty and a reflection upon his probity of conduct.

And that feeling is not softened by the fact that, although no country today has a compulsory fingerprinting law for all citizens, bureau officials point out that prints may be put to many civilian uses, although the system started as a means of identifying criminals.

THREE CHILDREN REPORTED BITTEN BY DOGS ON TUESDAY

B. F. Brooks stated Tuesday afternoon that three children had been bitten by dogs today. None of the dogs were thought to be mad but as a precautionary measure the head of one dog was sent to Austin for examination.

Mr. Brooks suggested that more stringent regulations governing dogs running at large should be adopted. He said that if precautionary measures were taken now it might prevent an epidemic of rabies in the summer.

Hamilton Cemetery Benefit At Angus School House Friday

On Friday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Angus school house there will be a miscellaneous market and entertainment for the benefit of the Hamilton-Beeman Cemetery Association which is now badly in need of funds for work in keeping down the grass and weeds and other improvements.

Besides the miscellaneous market, which will be interesting in itself, there will be two one-act plays that will be most interesting. There will be no charge for these plays but a free will offering will be taken. The general public is invited to attend this entertainment, enjoy a pleasant evening and help in a good cause.

MANY STUDENTS IN VOCATIONAL FARMING IN A. M. CONTESTS

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, April 17.—(Spl.)—More than 1,300 students in vocational agriculture, including a number from Navarro county, participated in the eighteenth annual Smith-Hughes contests early this week at Texas A. and M. College. Fourteen silver trophies and 36 banners were awarded the winners. State Orphans Home (Corsicana) and Sylvester, tied for first place in the dairy judging contest.

Other results of interest in Navarro county were:

Poultry and egg—Leghorns, J. Grant, Kerens, tied for high point man; crops, H. Minstra and J. Page, of Blooming Grove, tied for high point man, and Blooming Grove was first; cotton, Runge, Mildred, tied for first.

APPROPRIATION IS SOUGHT TO ERECT N. G. ARMORIES HERE

Telegrams were despatched Tuesday by several Corsicana and Navarro county organizations to President Roosevelt and Texas senators and congressmen urging that sufficient appropriation be made from the works relief bill to erect proper housing facilities for national defense units. Three of these units, batteries of the 132nd Field Artillery, Texas National Guard, are located in Navarro county.

According to plans of the various armories that have been prepared, the equipment supplied by the federal government will be more adequately protected, sufficient drill space will be provided, and at the same time places for public gatherings and recreation will be provided.

Bids on Materials For Construction CCC Camp April 22

Bids on lumber and other materials to be used in the construction of quarters for the CCC company to be located in Corsicana for erosion control work in Navarro county are scheduled to be received by army officials on Monday, April 22, according to information available Tuesday.

A representative of the U. S. Army staff in charge of the camp is slated to arrive in Corsicana within the next few days to complete other arrangements for the immediate location of the camp.

SENTIMENT GROWING FOR LARGER RURAL AID FROM RELIEF

IRRIGATION, SOIL EROSION AND RURAL REHABILITATION MAY GET MORE

By THOMAS J. HAMILTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—Dust storms and the threat of another drought in the Middle-West appeared today to be rolling up sentiment behind proposals that irrigation, soil erosion and rural rehabilitation projects be given a larger slice of the $4,000,000,000 work relief fund.

A report placed in the hands of Secretary Ickes by Dr. Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation, was reported to recommend more than $300,000,000 for irrigation projects.

Expenditure of $75,000,000 for materials and equipment was predicted in connection with plans—now before President Roosevelt—for employing a large proportion of the expanded civilian conservation corps in activities directed by the soil erosion service.

The relief administration already had authorized use of relief labor in an attempt to protect the farm lands of five western states against further damage by dust storms.

Some congressmen interested in these and other work relief expenditures hoped, meanwhile, to make an arrangement with the white house whereby they would get political prestige out of the program.

The unofficial house democratic steering committee asked President Roosevelt yesterday to give members of congress some say about work relief outlays in their districts. The president "listened sympathetically" but said nothing definite on this point, one of his callers from the capitol said privately.

Many Transplant Families

The possibility of heavy work relief expenditures for transplanting farm families was suggested in the event the weather bureau's fears of another drought materialize. Lawrence Westbrook, director of rural rehabilitation for the FERA, disclosed last night that he had asked for detailed information regarding a proposal already made for one such project. It would involve the transfer of 25,000 families from the Mid-West drought area to Western Oregon and Washington.

The report of the commissioner of reclamation to Secretary Ickes was said to ask $225,000,000 for continuing construction on dams financed with PWA money, and for addditional funds to start a number of new projects.

Officials have estimated that 1,250,000 acres of land in the Columbia river basin could be irrigated and made available for farming by construction of the high level dam at Grand Coulee at an estimated cost of $400,000,000.

MISS NORMA BROWN SCORES REPEAL FOR FAILURE OF PURPOSE

Speaking in the court room this afternoon, Miss Norma C. Brown, vice president of the Flying Squadron Foundation and editor-in-chief of the National Enquirer, its official paper, opened the meetings assigned to Corsicana in the ten-weeks campaign that is taking speakers of that organization from El Paso to the Louisiana line and from the Valley to the Panhandle. The closing meeting is to be held in the same place at 7:45 tonight and will be addressed by the Hon. Oliver W. Stewart.

Pointing to the utter failure of repeal to deliver on its promises in the states that are without their own prohibition laws, Miss Brown showed wherein the speed of modern transportation and the attending menace of alcohol in a day of fast motion make solution of the liquor problem imperative. She called attention to the fact that the assumption that we are on equal footing with other nations in that respect is not well-founded; that with seven per cent of the world's population we have 83 per cent of the world's automobiles, which operated to make the liquor issue more acute in this country than in any other.

Cost Traced Beyond Drinker.

The speaker traced the cost of the traffic beyond the drinker to all society and showed wherein it fails on sober, industrious citizens who do nothing to encourage the liquor business and share in none of its profits.

Frankly facing blunders made by the drys and designating errors to be avoided in the new battle for prohibition she defended the national dry policy as one vindicated both in theory and in practical inroads on the liquor evil. She dealt with the place of Texas as a key to vctory n other states, giving it high rank in influence both because of its size and its location. With reference to triumphs since national repeal in several states of the West and South, she indicated her belief that Texas could be held and called her hearers to that task.

Mr. Stewart, who speaks tonight, is a resident of Chicago, a former member of the Illinois legislature and a campaigner heard often in Texas by great audiences as he has visited the state in various crusades of the last 30 years.

DAR DELEGATES VOTING TODAY ON NATIONAL LEADERS

By BESS FURMAN

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution were voting today on the Becker vs. Gilentine slates placed before them last night with platform pageantry and [illegible]logy.

A record was established. Thir[illegible] candidates were officially put into the running between 8:30 and [illegible]:15 p. m. with two speeches and a deep bow per candidate.

[illegible] little light right under the speaker's face merrily flashed its warnings that time was [illegible]. Mrs. Russell William Magna, president general, didn't have to crack down even once on a nominator, a seconder, or a candidate taking a bow with applau[illegible].

In addition to Mrs. William A. Becker of New Jersey and her slate of eleven, and Dr. Flora Myers Gillentine of Tennessee, and [illegible] slate of ten, nine women were nominated for the vice president general. Seven of these [illegible] will win.

[illegible]y speaker had her bouquet of flowers, so the stage became one huge garden of bouquet-decking women elaborately gowned and handsomely coifed. Behind them where the flags of all the states; before them a stage front banked in ferns.

Mrs. Becker's nominator, Mrs. William John Ward, state regent of New Jersey, told how, among other accomplishments, Mrs. Becker had placed in constitutional hall a chair for every New Jersey chapter.

Mrs. Gillentine's nominator, Mrs. [illegible]len Harris, state regent of [illegible]nessee, said: "Go to statuary hall in your national capitol and there see the statues of Andrew Jackson and John Sevier, for which this daughter raised the funds in her native state."

The voting strength of the continental congress was given as 2050.

PEACE PACTS

for approval.

Swift, joint action against an aggressor nation is the essential element of the Franco-Russian agreement. Litvinoff preferred to have the two countries act without awaiting the judgment of the council of the League of Nations, but France was understood to have wished to keep the pact scrupulously within the framework of the league and seek the council's judgment whenever possible.

The extent to which mutual aid will be automatic is expected to require elucidation in further negotiations. A fundamental point of the projected accord is that the council will be convoked in extraordinary session within 48 hours in the event of a threat of war.

Free to Maintain Rights.

If the council should then fail to decide unanimously which nation was the aggressor, France and Russia, like all other states, would be free under the covenant to "maintain right and justice."

This is interpreted to mean that France and Russia would be at liberty to act quickly together.

If the council should agree upon designation of the aggressor, France and Russia conceivably might be called upon to apply whatever punitive measuser the league determined to invoke under the covenant.

Members of the Little Entente—Czechoslovakia and Rumania—met to consider the future of the proposed Danubian pact in the light of what generally is expected will be Reichsfeuhrer Hitler's refusal to join in guaranteeing Austria's independence as a consequence of the league council's action.

Czechoslovakia and Russia.

A Czechoslovak mutual assistance pact with Russia, modeled along the lines of that advanced by France, was outlined in conversations between Litvinoff and Dr. Eduard Benes, Czechoslovak foreign minister. Dr. Benes was expected to go to Moscow in June to sign the accord.

It was understood Laval and Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, plan to work for speedy conclusion of a defensive air pact among the western European powers for quick aid in the event any of the signatories is attacked.

There was even talk of reviving the once-projected Eastern Mediterranean pact among Yugoslavia, Greece, Bulgaria and Turkey.

Expected Recommend Man For Head IOOF Home on Thursday

STATE PLANNING BOARD WILL PROVIDE QUICK START TOWARD TAKING MEN OFF RELIEF ROLLS

AUSTIN, Texas, April 18.—(AP)—The planning board which Texas wisely established to develop projects for construction from the huge federal public works funds is expected to provide a quick start toward taking thousands of men off relief rolls and placing them in gainful occupations.

The board had been established and its personnel appointed when congress passed the $4,880,000,000 work-relief appropriation. It will take over the work begun by the voluntary organization formed during the administration of former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, which did effective work but was handicaped by lack of financing and technical advice.

Tasks of the new board have been definitely outlined. It is expected to have the determining of meritorious Texas projects and getting the applications before the PWA concisely and speedily. Texas' share of the huge appropriation is estimated at aproximately $200,000,000.

One of the first jobs of the board will be to breathe new life into the $60,000,000 project advanced by the Brazos river conservation and reclamation district which appears to have been halted in high quarters. Reports from Washington indicate Secretary Ickes, PWA chief, opposes the plan.

The Texas Highway Commission, foreseeing passage of the fee appropriation, has plans ready to begin highway construction as soon as funds are available. It is estimated projects that would require $70,000,000 for completion have been tentatively outlined.

Plans involving several million dollars are ready for submission to the federal bureau of public roads for approval before bids are called.

The commission expects to receive about $46,000,000 for highway construction. Coming when approximately one cent of each dollar of the department's receipts is required for maintenance and one cent to retire county road bonds with another cent allocated to the available school fund, the federal aid will prove a god-send to the commission to satisfy some of the demands and counties for construction and to carry out its announced program of improving cardinal highways for the Texas Centennial.

Aged Resident Of Alma Died Tuesday Burial In Rice

Jackson Hi School Exhibit Is Success

The Jackson High School manual training department had the attention of the public last week with its attractive exhibit. There were many useful pieces for every room of a home or office on display.

Prizes were given to the boys of the Junior High and Senior High departments. These prizes were given through the courtesy of local merchants. We are very grateful to these firms for the prizes given for the encouragement of these boys. The prizes were obtained through the efforts of the instructor, F. M. Taylor, whose superior training made this splendid exhibit possible.

We wish to thank the superintendent and members of the school board for our new shop.

es might be stranded in the storms, school boards announced schools would not be reopened until it rains.

Meanwhile, state and federal officials hurried through a survey of the stricken areas.

M. L. Wilson, assistant secretary of agriculture, continued his inspection tour, moving into Oklahoma and Texas after meeting with soil experts at Garden City, Kas.

Representatives of the five states recommended a two-phase program.

The one—a temporary measure—would extend the Kansas dust barrier program across the entire breeding ground of the dust and sand storms. This plan, now under way in Kansas, involves the listing of deep furrows at right angles to the prevailing winds.

The other—a long-time anti-dust plan—includes the resodding of land susceptible to blowing with grass crops, and a determination of the best cropping methods.

islation and local taxation, as well as over production.

The counsel survey was based on reports from 87 extile companies representing 105 mills employing 73,505 workers in New England.

"General dissatisfaction was expressed over steadily rising local and state tax burdens," the survey said.

New Hampshire mills favored elimination of the state "stock in process" tax, Massachusetts manufacturers complained of double taxation and Maine owners requested a comprehensive study of the relative tax burden on Maine mills compared to other states.

MOTHER CORSICANA MAN PASSED AWAY IN OKLAHOMA CITY

The many friends of Mrs. Fannie Griffen will regret to learn that she died last Wednesday in Oklahoma City and was buried there on Thursday. Mrs. Griffen, who was 77 years of age, resided in Corsicana many years and was the mother of Allen Griffen of Corsicana and Beatty Griffen of Oklahoma City, with whom she had been making her home since leaving Corsicana some two years ago. She was a long-time member of the First Presyterian church of Corsicana.

Allen Griffen was confined to a local hospital when word came of his mother's death and was unable to attend the funeral.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY WILL BE GIVEN ON NIGHT OF APRIL 24

Members of the cast of "Come Easy," a comedy in three acts by Felicia Metcalfe, are prepared to give the play-loving public two hours of genuine entertainment, on the night of Wednesday, April 24.

The play, which deals with the home life of the Ward family, has an all-star cast. Uncle Bill, who lives with the family in the old homestead, replenishes the family fortune whenever possible, but learns that the game may be played two ways. Mother Ward, Georgia to the children, has learned to take life rather nonchalantly, while Marcia, the older daughter and sole support of the family, manages to become infatuated with an Italian count just when the family fortune is at its lowest. Anna Mary Pierce has been cast as Mrs. Ward, with Patsy Curtis as her daughter, Marcia. William Hastings plays the part of Uncle Bill.

Others in the cast include Laura Delle Coulson, Geraldine Butler, Ella Ruth Sims, Robert McClure, Dick Eliot, John McElwrath, and James Paul Halbert.

GIANT CLIPPER IS SUCCESSFUL IN ITS FIRST LEG JOURNEY

BIG 'PIONEER' CLIPPED SEVEN HOURS FROM BEST CALIFORNIA-HONOLULU TIME

HONOLULU, April 17.—(AP)—The big Clipper plane "Pioneer" alighted on Pearl Harbor here at 7:57 a. m. Honolulu time (12:27 p. m. Central Standard time) today after a 2,400-mile flight from Alameda, Cal.

The plane roared over Honolulu at 7:05 a. m. Honolulu time, setting a new record for the east to west crossing of the Pacific.

Gliding gracefully down in a wide circle, the clipper split the waters of Pearl Harbor exactly three minutes before her scheduled landing time.

The ship had spent 52 minutes cruising over the city and adjacent cane fields.

It cut exactly seven hours from the best time made in the six previous crossings from California.

Commander Kneffler McGinnis led a mass flight of six navy planes to the islands Jan. 11, 1934, in 24 hours and 45 minutes.

The clipper, which left Alameda at 3:50 p. m. (Pacific Standard time) yesterday, reached almost 160 miles an hour at times.

Frequently, however, it slowed down to keep on its exact schedule.

Weather conditions were unusually favorable for the flight, and the crew frequently messaged about the scenic beauty of the sunset and the moonlight as it skimmed through the clouds.

Majestic in its flight, the clipper dipped a greeting to the thousands of residents who gathered early to await its arrival.

Through the gray mists the huge silver wing and large hull of the clipper suddenly appeared nearing the islands.

Exactly on schedule, Captain Edwin C. Musick and Pilot R. O. D. Sullivan pointed its nose directly over the city.

With smooth precision the clipper, after cruising over the city, settled on the waters of Pearl Harbor.

Captain Musick sat her along the comparatively choppy channel for a short distance, then turned and headed into position before the concrete ramp.

As the plane taxied to the ramp it was halted before about 1,000 cheering spectators.

Commander Wayne Todd of the fleet air base, accompanied by Colonel Clarence M. Young and J. Parker Van Zandt, local manager for Pan-American Airways, greeted Captain Musick.

Vastly pleased at the successful culmination of the flight, Colonel Young, representing Pan-American Airways, said that "the results of this trip are tremendously satisfactory and we appreciate fully the hearty welcome given to the plane by the people of Honolulu."

"However, Pan-American officials consider this flight a routine movement in steady construction of transoceanic airlines.

"It was undertaken only after careful preparation and was in no way intended as a stunt flight."

The clipper's commander and his crew of five men were introduced to A. E. Kirk, president of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, who in turn presented them to Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter, Admiral Harry E. Yarnell and others.

The first airmail from the mainland to Hawaii was delivered to Postmaster John Wilson, whose men deposited it in an automobile and sped toward the Honolulu postoffice, accompanied by a police escort.

Besides Musick and Sullivan, others aboard were Victor A. Wright, engineering officer; Fred J. Noonan, navigation officer; Harry R. Canaday, junior flight officer, and W. Turner Jarboe, Jr., radio officer.

Giant Plane Taking Slow, Zig-Zag Course

ALAMEDA, Cal., April 17.—(AP)—Zig-zagging above or between solid banks of clouds, the giant aerial clipper "Pioneer" roared toward Honolulu today on a routine" flight to pave the way for a trans-Pacific air line from the United States to the Orient.

Its crew of six saw nothing but clouds below them after th sun set last night, and early today another solid wall of clouds also obscured the sky.

They did not need to see anything but their instruments on the 2,400 mile flight for they were in constant communication with radio stations in Alameda and Honolulu, and periodically with Miami, Fla. Before them they had the most modern set of instruments for aerial navigation which permitted them to tell their exact position within 100 feet.

At 4 a. m. (7 a. m. Eastern Standard time) the clipper reported she was 1,698 miles from the California coast.

Although capable of a cruising speed of around 160 miles an hour, the plane slowed down to scarcely more than 100 miles an hour after passing the halfway mark shortly before midnight, and followed a zig-zag course to permit elaborate tests and so as not to arrive in Honolulu before breakfast time.

Wives of the fliers, maintaining an all night vigil at the Alameda airport, wagered among themselves as to the exact minute of the seaplane's arrival in Honolulu. They all figured it would be around 10 a. m. (1 p. m. Eastern Standard time) 18 hours after her take off from Alameda airport.

From the fliers themselves came only routine messages, periodically interrupted by references to the sunset, moonlight, or the beauties of the solid ban kof clouds that hid the ocean.

"We haven't seen the water since 7 p. m.," they reported once early today.

Their messages told of winds that varied from 10 miles an hour to a 20-mile head wind and 30-mile cross wind. Otherwise they repeatedly reported flying conditions and visibility "good."

Clipper Arrived At Honolulu on Time

HONOLULU, April 17.—(AP)—The Pan-American clipper plane "Pioneer" appeared over Honolulu at 9:37 a. m. (Pacific Standard time) today, in its flight from Alameda, Cal.

The ship passed over Diamond Head, flying high and fast, escorted by one swift navy pursuit plane. All four motors roared as the trans-Pacific trail blazing ship swung over the city.

Manifestly performing perfectly, she swept past Waikiki Beach and continued on over Honolulu harbor.

A crowd had gathered to watch the arrival of the trans-Pacific plane.

The clipper traveled the 2,400 miles in 17 hours and 47 minutes making a new flight record for the distance.

The plane arrived in the bright sunlight of a Hawaiian morning, breaking through clouds which had overhung the Island of Oahu at dawn.

Navy patrol ships which went out a few minutes before the arrival as an escort were circling outside Honolulu Harbor as the clipper came over Diamond Head.

The clipper flew over the center of Honolulu exactly on schedule, which called for arrival at 7:05 a. m. (11:35 Central Standard time.)

Advertise For Bids For Dirt Drainage Work

Advertisements for bids on the dirt and drainage structures on 13.6 miles of Highway 22, closing the gap between the end of the pavement two miles southeast of Eureka in Navarro county to the Anderson county all-weather roads, were placed in newspapers of Navarro, Freestone and Anderson counties Wednesday by M. L. Bowers, resident state highway engineer.

The bids for this work are scheduled to be opened at the meeting of the Texas Highway Commission April 30.

When this section of the road is completed, Palestine and Corsicana will be connected by a direct route. The huge bridge spanning Trinity river in the vicinity of the Wildcat Crossing has been completed. A permanent bridge will span Chambers creek.

COUNCIL OF LEAGUE ADOPTS RESOLUTION CONDEMN GERMANS

TRI-POWER EFFORT IS FINALLY SUCCESSFUL; DENMARK IS OPPOSED

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press.)

GENEVA, April 17.—The League of Nations council today adopted the tri-power resolution condemning Germany for her repudiation of treaty obligations with only Denmark abstaining from voting.

The resolution, presented jointly by France, Great Britain and Italy, deplored unilateral abrogation of treaty obligations and requested that the league appoint a committee to consider what measures, economic and financial, may be taken against future repudiators of international commitments.

Dr. Peter Munch, Danish foreign minister, in the discussion which preceded the voting, explained Denmark would not cast it ballot because she feared adoption of the resolution would hinder "the task of reconciliation."

Joseph M. Beck, Polish foreign minister, voted for the tri-power resolution, presumably, league authorities said, under strong persuasion from France. Poland previously had indicated her hostility toward the declaration because of its proposals for invoking sanctions against future treaty violators.

The vote came after Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar, had characterized Germany's rearmament as motivated by a policy of "revenge and conquest."

Litvinoff indicated Germany by implication, saying that her rearmament was intended to fulfill "a policy of revenge, the unlimited conquest of foreign territory, and the destruction of the independence of entire states."

Accused Hitler

He indirectly accused Reichsfuehrer Hitler and the Nazi regime of "having publicly announced such a program," and he implied that the Nazis, "far from repudiating it, continualy circulate it and bring up their country in this spirit."

An attempt by Litvinoff to extend the implications of the resolutions to parts of the world other than Europe was overridden.

The Soviet delegate's proposal was opposed by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, who asked the council to confine itself to "practical measures so all our efforts won't be lost in shallows and miseries."

Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France supported Sir John's views and asked Litvinoff not to press his request. Laval suggested that the Soviet objective might "more appropriately be done at another time under other circumstances."

Litvinoff thereupon agreed and the vote was called for on the tri-power resolution as originally introduced by the French foreign minister.

PROBE OF STATE PRISON FARM HAS BEEN COMPLETED

REPORT OF LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE EXPECTED BE COMPLETED IN WEEK

HOUSTON, April 17.—(AP)—Five Texas legislators who conducted a secret inquiry into claims that convicts on the Retrieve state prison farm were treated so brutally that they maimed themselves, said on their return today that they likely would complete a report within the next week.

The special house committee questioned approximately 15 convicts on the Retrieve farm, three of whom recently were transferred from Retrieve to another unit, about ten guards, prison physicians and officials both of the farm and the entire prison system.

Lee Simmons, general manager, of the prison system, and I. K. Kelly, Retrieve farm manager, expressed confidence the investigators would agree the convicts had not been mistreated. Simmons contended the prisoners maimed themselves because they didn't like to work and not because of brutality.

The house ordered the inquiry after W. A. Boyett of Bryan and W. R. Dulaney of Houston, two of the nine members of the state prison board, called attention to the convicts' allegations of brutality and urged that conditions at Retrieve be investigated.

Dulaney and Boyett did not go to the Retrieve farm to appear before the committee. Committeemen said, however, that they would hold another session here if the two board members wanted to testify.

Kenneth McCalla, of Houston, chairman of the committee, said at the close of the secret sessions at the farm that all of five members apparently were in accord in their conclusions "from the testimony we have heard so far." He had indicated earlier that his findings might differ from those of the other committeemen. McCalla was author of the resolution calling for the investigation.

The house committee inquiry was the third investigation of the brutality claims. Ranger Captain Fred McDaniel, investigating under orders of Gov. James V. Allred, reported that he found no convicts who had been mistreated recently.

Simmons and Dr. W. B. Veazey, head physician for the prison system, said they did not uncover sufficient evidence of brutality to justify suspensions of a single guard.

RAISING OF ADDED MONEY PROMISED BY STOPPING LOOPHOLES

SWIFT ACTION FOLLOWS APPEAL BY WOODUL TO SUSPEND RULES

AUSTIN, April 17.—(AP)—Swift approval by the Texas house of representatives followed recommendation today by Acting Governor Walter F. Woodul that rules be suspended to permit passage of a series of bills to strengthen existing tax laws and raise an estimated $17,500,000 annually in revenue.

The house voted 11 to8 to 10 to suspend its rules despite strong assertions by opponents that the plan was a trap laid by sales tax advocates in the senate who sought to stave off an increased tax on oil and taxes on corporations.

Bills to plug loopholes in the cigarette, beer, gasoline and gross production tax laws and to tax wholesalers and retailers of medicinal whiskey were included in the group.

Representative A. K. Daniel of Crockett denied the bills would increase revenues in the amount estimated.

"This movement comes from advocates of a sales tax and from those opposing oil taxes and other corporation levies," he said. "We got Woodul down in the governor's office and up comes this proposition. On our calendar now are bills recommended by the tax commissioner that would raise additional revenue from those able to bear it."

Woodul is acting governor while Gov. James V. Allred is in Washington.

The house refused to suspend the rules to permit consideration of bills to increase the sulphur production tax and to levy taxes on chain stores and incomes. Each received a majority vote but fell short of the necessary two-thirds.

Representative W. E. Jones of Jourdanton, chairman of the house revenue and taxation committee, said enactment of the bills would reduce the likelihood of an immediate special session to balance the budget.

Charges that the current regular session has been "nothing short of a prolonged filibuster" were made by Representative William A. Schofner of Temple who urged that a serious effort be made to balance the budget.

The motion on the sulphur tax bill received 72 ayes and 68 noes. Votes of 75 ayes and 55 noes and 60 ayes and 55 noes, respectively, were recorded on the chain store and income tax bills.

Discussion on the suspension resolution replaced a senate bill to establish a state department of public safety in the house. Representative C. E. Farmer of Fort Worth charged the plan for a strong, centralized police force was devised to crush the unemployed when relief conditions grow acute next winter.

The house adopted an amendment to reduce the salary of the safety department director from $5,000 to $3,000 and to eliminate an assistant director.

Regulatory Board.

It concurred in senate amendments to a bill to establish a state board to regulate cosmetologists and hair dressers.

The biennial appropriation bill for eleemosynary institutions was sent to conference when the house refused to accept senate amendments.

The senate adopted amendments to the house $10,000,000 rural aid bill to eliminate restrictions on expenditure of local maintenance funds and to increase from 75 cents to $1 the minimum tax required levied by school districts to be eligible for the aid.

Senator Arthur P. Duggan of Littlefield said the purpose was to continue terms of the present law.

AUSTIN, April 17.—(AP)—Adoption of a conference report on a bill to create the Sabine-Neches conservation district was reconsidered by the senate today and the matter returned to conference for revision.

Object on was raised to a clause which, it was contended, would permit any conservation or reclamation district to issue an unlimited amount of revenue bearing warrants, sale of which would not be confined to the federal government.

Reconsideration was ordered, 10 to 8 with five not voting, on motion of Senator Weaver Moore of Houston. The conference was not instructed but Senator John S. Redditt of Lufkin, author of the bill immediately moved to eliminate the objectionable clause.

One effect of the clause would be, have removed a milit of $10,000,000 placed on revenue bonds permitted issued by the lower Colorado river authority. Another bill pending would double the limit.

Glavis Called Off East Texas Oil Probings

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—The interior department's division of investigation, headed by Louis Glavis, was ordered today by Secretry Ickes to end its activities in the East Texas oil field.

Ickes said at a press conference that a new investigative force, the federal petroleum supervisory agency, would aid in regulating interstate shipments from the huge fields.

He explained he had directed Glavis and the federal tender board to turn over to G. W. Van Fleet, director of the new agency, all their investigation records.

Ickes' only explanation of his action was that "it seemed to us that for better administration we should concentrate the work heretofore carried on by the tender board and Mr. Glavis."

Ickes expressed belief that federal regulation of the oil industry was necessary and vigorously approved the Thomas bill designed to set up state quotas of production of crude which reaches interstat ecommerce.

SENATE FAVORABLE LIBERAL TREATMENT OF WARDS OF STATE

ELEEMOSYNARY APPROPRIATIONS WOULD BE INCREASED BY HALF MILLION

AUSTIN, April 16.—(AP)—The senate today passed finally, 23 to 2, a house bill to provide funds for eleemosynary institutions during the next biennium after increasing the total to $11,207,184.

The house total was $10,403,044, and the senate committee recommendation, $9,945,924.

Most of $1,261,260 added by senate floor amendments was for new buildings.

Without debate, the senate passed unanimously a house bill to modernize the state blue sky law and strengthen regulations on the marketing or securities.

Sponsors said a substitute drafted by a senate committee would be acceptable to house sponsors of the administration-approved bill.

AUSTIN, April 16.—(AP)—Liberal appropriations for eleemosynary institutions to provide new buildings and permit the removal of insane from jails were favored in the senate today.

Recommendations of the senate finance committee were igored as amendments totaling $484,740 for new buildings were added to an eleemosynary appropriation bill of $9,945,924.

The house bill appropriated $10,403,044. Approximately $480,000 was recommended by senate committee for other construction.

Amendments would provide two new ward buildings, to cost $55,000 each, at Abilene State Hospital, in addition to a third recommended by the house; transfers from the second year to the first and increase to $110,000 an allotment for a ward building at Austin State Hospital; provide $118,000 for a new ward building at Terrell State Hospital, and allot $120,000 for a new building at Galveston State Psychopathic Hospital.

Other amendments increased appropriations for the Galveston Hospital from $65,912 to $202,204 the first year and from $66,363 to $76,454 the second year.

Meanwhile, Acting Governor Walter Woodul urged the legislature to co-operate with the federal government and other states in stopping wind erosion of soil.

Federal Agencies.

He also requested enactment of a bill authorizing the reconstruction finance corporation or any other corporation whose stock was owned exclusively by the federal government to do business in Texas without payment of state filing fees, franchise or other corporation taxes.

What sponsors feared was a determined filibuster greeted house resumption of debate on a bill to establish a state commission to regulate public utilities. With approximately 60 amendments pending, a motion to end debate was defeated, 61 to 73.

Representative W. E. Jones of Jourdanton asserted lengthy deliberation on the utility bill was killing other major legislation. The bill has been debated since last Friday, but only three major amendments have been finally considered.

Another attack by Representative W. E. Pope of Corpus Christi was defeated, 103 to 32. Pope attempted to eliminate the proposed appointive state commission and vest utility regulation in city councils and county commissioners' courts.

RUMORS REVIVED OF PLACE BEING MADE FOR LLOYD GEORGE

LONDON, April 18.—(AP)—The launching of David Lloyd George's "new deal" negotiations with the British cabinet revived rumors today in political circles that a place might be made in the government for the war-time premier.

Although the Welsh leader denied some time ago he aspired to a cabinet post, some quarters believe the talks he entered upon today may lead ultimately to his being offered a portfolio.

A committee of eight ministers was named to hear Lloyd George's presentation of his plan to establish an American-model recovery program in Great Britain.

They include Prime Minister Ramsay Mac Donald and Neville Chamberlin, Chancellor of the Exchequer—who are bitter political enemies of the fiery Welshman and among the sharpest critics of his proposed methods to restore prosperity.

THREE NATIONS ASK CONDEMNATION FOR TREATY BREAKERS

GREAT BRITAIN AND ITALY LEND SUPPORT TO FRANCE IN LEAGUE COUNCIL

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)
(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press.)

GENEVA, April 16.—(AP)—France, Great Britain and Italy today submitted to the extraordinary council session of the League of Nations the draft of a resolution condemning "any unilateral repudiation of international obligations" such as Germany's repudiation of the armaments clauses of the Versailles treaty.

Pierre Laval, foreign minister of France, although faced with opposition to the resolution by several nations, notably Poland and Danakr, received the strong support of spokesmen for both Great Britain and Italy when he presented it to the council.

The first reaction by German observers here was that the resolution was too strong and would hinder Germany's participation in the collective peace arrangements called for by the document.

League authorities said the action which may be taken on the resolution is likely to affect the future of the League of Nations and of Europe itself.

The resolution declared: "Germany has failed in the duty which lies upon all members of the international community to respect understandings which they have contracted."

The resolution further states that Germany, by the promulgation of its military law of March 16 (conscription) introduced "a new disturbing element into the international situation" which "must necessarily appear to be a threat to European security."

At the same time, the resolution offers a way out from the present situation, inviting the governments concerned with the Franco-British security plan of February 3 to co-operate for the construction "within the framework of the League of Nations" of a plan for the maintenance of peace. It was recalled that Germany was invited to join in the Franco-British plan.

GENEVA, April 16.—France today presented a resolution "condemning" Germany's repudiation of treaties as a private session of the League of Nations Council. France's spokesman and foreign minister, Pierre Laval, announced it as a joint resolution of France, Great Britain and Italy.

French sources said that, despite opposition by some nations, they felt confident the League council would adopt the resolution.

Laval went into the private session taking with him a declaration of two typewritten pages in support of the French resolution.

Before he entered the council chamber, he created a sensation by announcing the French motion of protest against German re-armament would not be modified to meet opposition views.

The French decision was said to have been prompted by Laval's inability to reach an agreement on the text of the resolution in private conversations with members of the council.

France has decided, it was said, she prefers to get some condemnation of Germany's act even if supported only by a section of the council rather than a unanimously endorsed resolution of no significance.

The French said they expected support for their resolution from Great Britain, Italy, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Turkey, Portugal, and possibly Austrialia and Mexico. They said they believed Denmark, Argentina, Chile, and Spain were almost certain to withhold approval. Other sources said Poland might vote against the French resolution.

League officials said they believed there was a possibility the resolution draft might be revamped in the council's private session which will deal with it first.

After long consultation with the French delegation, Laval decided to introduce France's draft of the resolution at this afternoon's session and deliver a speech in its support.

Council Session Delayed.

Only a short time before the foreign minister's announcement the scheduled session of the council was postponed for five hours to give Laval an opportunity to attempt to win over dissenters.

Danish and Polish opposition to the vigor of the French proposals was said to constitute the principal obstacle to France's design.

The troublesome question, one spokesman said, is whether the league's ultimate resolution should contain "condemnation, a scolding or only an expression of regret at Germany's action or, whether, as the Danes insist, it refrained from mentioning Germany at all."

The road to re-armament for Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria likewise appeared far from smooth. While foreseeing eventual sanction for the military objectives of the three central European nations, a French spokesman said the Little Entente is still hesitant, feeling there is more security in disarmed neighbors than in the proposed Danubian pact.

Hungary Blocks Moves.

Hungary further blocked the projected negotiations for her rearmament when a Hungarian spokesman said his country refused to accept conditions in advance.

Hungary, he said, feels she is entitled to unqualified re-armement now that Germany has shaken off her military restrictions and that any negotiation for security pacts should come afterwards as a separate matter.

This attitude is in direct opposition to the stand of France and the Little and Balkan Ententes as officially stated in last nights communique.

In view of the dissension in Central Europe, French circles reported the Balkan and Little Ententes are likely to sign bilateral assistance pacts with Austria and Italy in a conference at Rome late in May or possibly even earlier.

The plan of appointing an official reporter or reporters for France's appeal before the council was dropped. Spain made the appointment of Salvador de Madiraga as a reported conditional on the designation of two-co-reporters, but the Danish and Chilean delegates who were suggested as his associates declared they preferred not to be named.

Woodul Received Almost $5,000,000 For Relief Work

AUSTIN, April 17.—(AP)—Acting Governor Walter F. Woodul today received $4,947,117 from federal authorities to be disbursed as follows:

General relief, $2,300,000! relief research, $6,102; cattle program $32,500; transient relief $118,000; transient relief, supplemental for April $20,000; education program, $127,300; student aid $63,215; rural rehabilitation and drought relief $2,250,000.

The acting governor turned the money over to the state relief commission.

LONG THREATENS IMPEACHMENT THREE HIGH COURT JUDGES

THREE SUPREME COURT JUSTICES HAVE GONE CONTRARY TO DESIRES

BATON ROUGE, La., April 16. (AP)—Senator Huey P. Long today said definitely he would "advocate the impeachment and removal" of three justices of Louisiana's supreme court.

After storming against the justices before a meeting of the legislative house ways and means committee declaring that they "should be impeached," Long later said he would definitely recommend such action by the legislature.

"I am going to advocate their impeachment and removal," he remarked after taking his seat as the commitete would up its deliberations.

The supreme court jurists who have on occasion ruled contrary to Long's wishes are Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill, Wynne G. Rogers and Justice Fred M. Odom.

"Will you take any action at this session?" the senator was asked.

"We may," Long answered.

May Impeach Judges.

BATON ROUGE, La., April 16.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long today threatened impeachment of three justices of state supreme court and intimated the action might be taken at this special session of the legislature.

"Something has got to be done with the crooked jurisprudence in this state," Long said while "explaining" before the house ways and means committee more than a score of bills introduced last night.

"Why, you've got three judges down there on the supreme court who decide one thing one day and something else the next day.

"This legislature is of the humor of doing something about it. I don't know whether we should not take it up at this legislature and do something for the people."

"Everyone of those three judges should be impeached," the senator shouted, moving up and down near the end of the committee table. "I don't know whether it isn't the duty of this legislature to impeach these judges. We may do it."

He referred to Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neal as that "crooked-legg justice," the "crookedest part" of the court. Chief Justice ONeill has had an afflicted leg all his life.

The other two justices Long threatened with impeachment are Wynne G. Rogers and Fred M. Odom.

Long said the three justices had ruled at one time when "dummy" candidates were used against him that they were legal but that in the next election when he used "dummy" candidates for protection the justices had reversed their ruling and held they were unlawful.

Curb Narrow.

NEW YORK, April 18.—(AP)—Price swings were narrow and slightly mixed in the curb market trading favorites.

Higher prices were paid for issues like Pan American Airways, Swift and Co., Wright Hargreaves, Pioneer Gold, International Petroleum and Lake Shore Mines.

Utilities were neglected although prices were firm.

Don Humphries, Jr., student in Texas A. and M. College, College Station, arrived home Wednesday night to spend the week-end with relatives here. He formerly was a star football player with Corsicana high school.

STRAIGHT FINANCING OF AGRICULTURE IS BEING WORKED OUT

DEFLECTION FROM OLD PLOW-UNDER PROGRAM WILL BE EMPHASIZED

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP)—A new approach to the farmer help problem is being shaped up quietly on Capitol Hill with emphasis deflecting from the old plow-under program to straight-out financing.

There is, for example, legislation by Chairman Jones (D-Texas) of the house agriculture committee to set up what would amount to a federal reserve bank for agriculture. Jones asserts the farmer pays too much for the money he borrows.

That, he contends, is because the farm credit agencies have to get their capital by expensive bond issues, with the farmer-borrower having to stand the expense of that financing from two sides. Under his new plan, which he is hopeful of putting through this season, the new bank would discount land banks' and other paper direct.

Then there is the Jones-Bankhead measure that would in effect provide a home owners loan corporation for little farmers. Enthusiastically endorsed in principal yesterday by both Secretary Wallace and Lawrence Westbrook, assistant relief director, it contemplated a billion dolla: 'farm home" corporation to finance small farm plots and equipment, of say 20 to 40 acres, and enable tenant farmers and share-croppers to become independent landowners.

Thrown On Relief.

The crop control program has brought increasing attention to the plight of this 42 per cent of the soil tillers, a large number of whom have been thrown on relief, experts say. The agriculture department is reporting to the budget bureau on this legislation and all indications are it will be pushed with at least tacit administration support.

Another legislative trend regarded as significant lies in the return by the house committee to the old theory of coming right out and subsidizing farm exports. A combination of the McNary-Haugen and export debenture ideas has been super-imposed on the agricultural adjustment act amendments sought by Secretary Wallace. There are authoritative indications that further AAA legislation would be pushed along by the committee chiefly in order to get over the export subsidy authorization.

ALLRED TELLS VIEWS ON THOMAS BILL TO PRESIDENT TODAY

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)—Governor James V. Allred conveyed to President Roosevelt today the attitude of Texas officials toward the Thomas oil bill or similar legislation at this session of congress.

Although declining to disclose exactly how far he went, the governor, a few moments before approaching the President, repeated his contention that the bill was "illegal, unnecessary and inadvisable from a party standpoint."

The Texas legislature last week unanimously adopted a resolution opposing any new oil laws and declaring Texas can adequately handle production problems in its many oil pools, especially the East Texas field. The resolution called attention to the state democratic party's declaration against federal oil control at its Galveston convention last fall.

The Governor, Chairman E. O. Thompson of the Texas Railroad Commission and Attorney General William McCraw led a vigorous fight against the Thomas bill yesterday in hearings before a senate mines sub-committee.

HUMANITY'S OLDEST QUESTION ANSWERED BY EASTER TRUTH *

Baffled and Bewildered Science Has No Key To the Riddle of Immortality----Only the Bible Speaks Clearly----A Traveller's Easter On Jerusalem's Wall.

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

Iumanity's oldest question was ver more insistent or debated n today—"If a man die, will live again." Before the first ne of the pyramids was laid— nselves a huge evidence of an faith in a hereafter—man pondering this deepest of blems.

rybody tackles the puzzle time or another. Youth, re of its own conclusions, es the issue with itself; old finds that it precedes all interests.

this flesh-and-blood life h we are living today is but vestibule to a larger, freer, diviner life that we are to live through endless aeons, then all questions of character and conduct must be determined in the white light of eternity. But if man is born but to die, and if death ends all, then we may "eat, drink and be merry," without the sublime inspirations and inhibitions of an endless life beyond the grave.

Jarring Voices, Uncertain Tones

Not many weeks ago a Chicago professor proclaimed that there was no creative force behind the universe; it just happened; and so there are no spiritual or moral implications in it. Even the wise-cracking newspaper paragraphers paid no attention to this exhibition of folly. Indeed the world is weary of the curious and incomprehensible theories of scientists concerning man's pirit and destiny. The physicists peak with jarring voices and un rtain tones upon the greatest eme that has even engrossed mind of man.

esterday an editor friend ded me a little book, by an or recently dead, who underto expound the mystery of ity. The writer had evident- been under the influence of lt teachers, and he had tried ster the conflicting views of sc e. All the conclusion to wh he had come was a confusing jargon of "patterns of electricity," which might mean life!

In vain we search the test-tubes and retorts and microscopes and telescopes of science for a reply to the question that throbs in every mortal mind. Clearly, the answer is not there. Worthier of credence is the irresistible and ineradicable impulse planted in the heart of humanity of every race and condition.

The Book Of Life.

But surest of all—and the only clear and explicit answer given to us concering the problem of immortality—is the plain teaching of the Bible. The poet's "Intimations of Immortality" are indefinite; but the Scriptures are categorical and certain. In them, from first to last, we find the refrain of a life that embraces both time and eternity. If we want to discover the one formulated basis of man's hope of a life beyond the grave, of a persistence of personality, of a future of bliss, [illegible] of [illegible] st N. Y. Reserve [illegible] gave [illegible] forebears living and faith for [illegible] n of immortality gh the Old Testa- and Elijah passed into the portals of the larger life without going through the gates of the grave. David affirmed that he would go to his dead child. The Psalms are suffused with the idea of heaven as a cure for the ills of earth. In their keen sense of justice, the prophets invoked eternity to redress the wrongs of time.

But it is when we come to the New Testament, and the plain words of Jesus, that we get the clearest promise of a future life wherein all is well. When His group of intimate friends. His real family, were grieving over the impending separation which He had predicted—as every family and friendship must ultimately be broken up—Jesus comforted them with the familiar words, based on the Father nature of God. "In My Father's house are many abiding places"—homes that never break up. He did not use the word which means "mansion" in our speech; His thought was to put into apposition to the transitoriness of this life the permanence of the life into which He was returning, to prepare a place for them. It would be earth's best, perpetuated, purified and perfected.

This, then, we know about the future life of all friends of Jesus: It is in the Father's presence. It is fitted to the new needs of each. It is permanent. It is a release and a reward and a reunion. It is a thing of joy and a place of service. It is free from all of life's misunderstandings, limitations and burdens. It is in the personal nearness of the Saviour Himself, Who is the Way to the Father's house.

The Easter Pledge.

This Easter lesson, which so many millions will study anew, comes opportunely at a time when the thoughts of men seem to be turning with increased avidity to spiritual concerns. On the day that this lesson will be studied, millions of persons will have gone to mountain top and seashore, to field and forest and church, for Easter sunrise services. This is a new development in the life of the western world; and it has profound significance. Not for nothing do men and women arise from their beds a great while before day in order to meet with great companies of their fellows to greet the dawn of the day that commemorates the Resurrection. These widespread Easter sunrise services are a token of the immortal hope in the breasts of humanity.

Easter repeats the life-message of Jesus, "Because I live, ye shall live also." "I am the resurrection and the life." It is His pledge of immortality. or in the resurrection from the tomb, Jesus gave an earnest of the rising again of all who follow Him in life and in death.

On The Jerusalem Wall.

One never-to-be-forgotten Easter morning, a few years ago, I stood with Mrs. Ellis alone on the northern wall of Jerusalem, and watched the sun rise over the Mount of Olives and noted the awakening of the city to the celebration of its great day. We were within calling distance of all of the events of the first Easter morning. Somewhere to the north of us three crosses had once been lifted up. Nearby had been the new tomb of Joseph of Arimathea, where the soldiers had mounted guard over the still form of the Crucified. The streets hereabouts had echoed to the hurrying feet of the loyal, weeping women, bearing spices for the body of their Beloved. Somewhere along here had raced impetuous Peter and John, after they had heard the women's startling tidings of an empty tomb. And hard by where we were standing the angel had said "He is not here; He is risen"—the most momentous words ever spoken to human ears.

As the sun rose, the bells of the church of the Holy Sepulchre, and of other churches, jubilantly sounded the Easter message. The streets became busy with devout Christians, of all colors and costumes and creeds, hastening to celebrate the day of days amidst these associations. Over all the growing activity, and over our own devotions, there broooded in my mind the universal truth, unrelated to place or time, "He is not here; He is risen." The Resurrection is not only a historical fact, but also a present experience; and the one sure guarantee that man's great enemy, death, has been defeated; and that moral destiny includes two worlds.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD THURSDAY FOR COUNTY PIONEER

Funeral rites for J. M. Huff, 91, pioneer resident of Blooming Grove, who died Tuesday night at 7:50 o'clock after a several months illness, were held Thursday afternooon at 2 'clock from the Blooming Grove Methodist church with burial in Oakwood cemetery here. The rites were conducted by Rev. P. W. Utley, pastor of the Blooming Grove church, assisted by Rev. T. Edgar Neal, pastor of the First Methodist church of Corsicana.

Mr. Huff had long been prominent in the Methodist church, Masonic Lodge circles and the United Confederate Veterans. He had been a Mason for 65 years, served throughout the Civil war and was assistant quartermaster general of the veterans under General R. A. Sneed. He engaged in many important battles during the war and was wounded three times. He was with General Robert E. Lee when Lee surrendered ending the hostilities.

Mr. Huff was a member of the Karem Shrine Temple, Waco, and had been tiler of the Blooming Grove Masonic lodge since 1889.

A native of Alabama, Mr. Huff came to Texas in 1876 and settled in the Blooming Grove vicinity the following year and had resided there since that time.

Masons had charge of the rites at the grave.

Mrs. Huff died in Blooming Grove in 1932.

Surviving are two sons, W. M. Huff, Corsicana and E. J. Huff, Blooming Grove; three daughters Mrs. George R. Mabry, Blooming Grove; Mrs. B. A. Wilson, Dallas; and Mrs. M. B. Howard, of Grandfield, Oklahoma, and other relatives.

BLOOMING GROVE, April 17.—(Spl.)—J. M. Huff, aged 91 years pioneer resident of Navarro county, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. G. R. Mabry, here Tuesday night at 7:50 o'clock following a several months illness, and the funeral will be held from the local Methodist church Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in Oakwood cemetery in Corsicana.

Mr. Huff was a native of Alabama, but had resided in Texas for 59 years. He was prominent in the Methodist church for more than 40 years, and had been affiliated with the Masonic Lodge for 65 years. He was a Confederate veteran. He was mustered into the Confederate army at Marion, Alabama, May 25, 1861, and served throughout the war with the exception of a short time on two furloughs due to wounds.

Wounded Three Times.

Mr. Huff was wounded three times—in the battles of Petersburg Va., Sharpsburg, Maryland; and Gettysburg, Pa. He was a member of Company K, Eighth Alabama regiment, Willcox's brigade, with General A. P. Hill's corps. He was present at the surrender of General Robert E. Lee at the close of the war. He served under General Lee after General Lee was placed in comamnd of the Confederate forces. He engaged in all of the battles of the Army in North Virginia except during the time he was absent due to wounds, and could graphically describe the surrender of General Lee that ended the war.

The aged Confederate has been active in the circles of the United Confederate Veterans and was promoted to assistant quartermaster general by General R. A. Sneed.

Mr. Huff had long been prominent in Masonic circles, having affiliated himself with the order in 1870. He was also a member of the Shrine with membership in Karem Temple, Waco. He had been tiler of the Blooming Grove Masonic Lodge No. 497 since 1889.

Came to Texas in 1876.

The family came to Texas in 1876 and moved to the Blooming Grove community in 1877, residing in that section since that time.

Mr. Huff was born July 13, 1843 in Perry county, Alabama. He was married to Elizabeth Frances Jones in 1867. The couple had been married 65 years when Mrs. Huff passed away at Blooming Grove in 1932.

Mr. Huff was in excellent health and led an active life until about Christmas when he suffered an attack of influenza from which he never fully recovered.

Burial In Oakwood.

The funeral rites will be conducted by Rev. P. W. Utley, pastor of the Blooming Grove Methodist church, assisted by Rev. T. Edgar Neal, pastor of the First Methodist church of Corsicana. Mr. Huff will be buried beside his wife. The Masons will have charge of the services at the grave.

Surviving are two sons: W. M. Huff, Corsicana, and E. J. Huff, Blooming Grove; three daughters, Mrs. George R. Mabry, Blooming Grove; Mrs. B. A. Wilson, Dallas; and Mrs. M. B. Howard of Grandfield, Okla, and other relatives.

The McCormick Funeral Home will have charge of the arrangements.

40 NAVARRO COUNTY CANDIDATES HAVE ENROLLED FOR CCC

Forth Navarro county candidates for enrollment in the CCC companies now being formed are scheduled to report in Waco Friday morning for physical examinations according to W. D. Robinson, county relief administrator, and in charge of the enrollment. A large number of boys have applied for places in the quota and about 45 will be sent to Waco in order to supply a full complement.

A noticeable decline in the number of new applications for relief is reported by officials, and they also stated that dismissals from the rolls are declining for the time being at least as a concerted drive to decrease the load is nearing completion.

Officials of the rural rehabilitation department are now engaged in visiting the various families who have been allotted land upon which they will be helped to make crops in an effort to restore them to a self-supporting basis.

Stricken With Hiccoughs

BEAUMONT, April 18.—(AP)—When efforts to stop an atack of hiccoughs with which he was stricken yesterday failed, B. B. Tilley was rushed this afternoon to the Marine hospital at Galveston.

Members of Tilley's family said he hiccaughed at intervals yesterday, but that today the attack was contiauous.

20,000 Persons Fined in Court By Judge Melear

"I have fined approximately 20,000 persons on various charges in the city court of Corsicana since I became city recorder, 22 years ago," H. S. Melear, recorder, stated to a reported Tuesday afternoon when queried relative to the number of persons hailed before him on charges of infraction of city regulations and measures.

Judge Melear, laughingly, also recalled four or five mayors who have been relieved of fines for minor traffic violations in the city court.

The recorder said that there had been slightly in excess of 13,000 cases tried in city court since the beginning of the oil boom and he estimates about 7,000 for the decade preceding the deep oil discovery in the Corsicana-Powell field in 1923.

A large number of Corsicanans as well as residents of other places have paraded before Judge Melear at morning and afternoon sessions of court in the city courtroom.

Several Arrests By Police Department

City officers arrested a negro youth riding a stolen bicycle Tuesday afternoon but the boy was subsequently released when the owners of the vehicle refused to file charges.

Two white boys were arrested for gaming with dice.

A man was arrested for county authorities on grand jury indictments for burglary.

LOCAL SCHOLASTIC ENROLLMENT TO BE ABOUT STATIONARY

Scholastic enrollment in the Corsicana publis schools for 1935-1936 will approximate the figures for the 1934-1935 session if the census figures compiled following the completion of the scholastic enumeration are to be taken as a criterion, it was pointed out Wednesday afternooon in the office of W. H. Norwood, superintendent of the city schools.

"There have been 3,734 scholastics enrolled th! year, and we do not expect to lose many through errors,' Superintendent Norwoood stated.

There are 3,710 students in the schools at the present time while the high enrollment, counting all who have dropped out, for the year is 4,073. There are 284 transfers attending school at the present time and there are many who are aying tuition.

Unless there are many more transfers made to the Corsicana schools, and an unexpected increase in the population of Corsicana, Superintendent Norwood expects next year's enrollment to be approximately the same as this year.

Students can be transferred into the Corsicana district until August 1.

BEAUTY CHATS

By EDNA KENT FORBES

All requests for beauty information desired by Edna Kent Forbes column followers must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope (s.a.s.e.) and two cents in stamps to cover cost of printing and handling. For the illustrated pamphlet, "BEAUTY," ten cents in stamps with fully s.a.s.e. must be enclosed. Address Miss Forbes in care of this paper.

FURTHER ECONOMIES

HOME MADE BEAUTY THINGS

Miss Forbes gives you some further economies today, in beauty preparations which you can easily make for yourself. The materials for these things cost little or nothing.

E. K. Forbes

Not that you need another spring hat, but it would be nice to have it! And with enough money saved from other things, it could be bought with clear conscience too. Yesterday we suggested disposing of all creams, cleansing, massage, nourishing, cuticle, and even hair creams, all at one fell swoop (whatever that may be), and substituting for the lot good olive oil. This solves many, but not all, beauty problems. What can we do about the rest—and save money?

Well, try lemon juice for manicuring, as a bleach and an astringent, to go under and around the nails—later to be washed off and the cuticle oiled, of course. You can tint that oil, you know, from your rouge box, if you like. Buy a bottled mixture of rose water and glycerin, which the cut rate drug stores have very often at low sales prices; to this, add a quarter its own amount of lemon juice—it makes a wonderful hand bleach for the coming hot days of summer, and it soothes as well.

Or buy cucumbers, chop them up and simmer them with as little water as possible. Keep covered while cooking, of course, and press the juice through an old, washed sugar bag. Use this just as it is, for your hands as a bleach, on your face as a bleach, your arms, use it instead of the lemon juice to mix with rose water and glycerin. It makes a grand emulsion for the hands, and you can even add a few drops of olive oil to each eight ounce bottle and shake this to make yourself a hand tonic with a slight oil body. Good for dry skin.

Ever try olive oil in your bath? Two tablespoonsful on top of the tubful of hot water. Slide into it, relax, stir the water about if the oil tends to form minute drops. On the way in your skin has taken up some oil, on the way out the water it gets some more, and not even the towel removes it all. A little bit, very soothing, remains in the skin.

M. S. B.—Your scalp must need a great deal of oil now, and your hair will also be benefitted by it. The night before a shampoo massage plenty of oil into the scalp, and it may even be heated. Half olive and half castor oil combined, makes a good choice for this purpose. After the shampoo, hair like yours will be apt to need oil to relieve the extreme dryness, and it may be given to it without showing. You need then a very fine oil, either a brilliantine to be put in the palm of one hand, then rubbed into both palms, to be used to smooth all the flying ends of hair over the whole head. Another way, is to dip an orange wood stick into hot olive oil, and lay it along a part for a few minutes. The oil will run over the scalps in each direction without touching the hair. Repeat these parts every few inches, and use the stick dipped nito the hot oil. A tonic would be helpful, too. If you wish a formula for one, and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I shall be glad to mail it to you.

Miss A. Del B.—Food in which there is plenty of roughage will help correct the tendency to constipation. Try whole grain cereals and bread, with omission of the foods that pack, such as everything made from refined white flour. Vegetables and fruit are ideal for such a diet. Meats are not. Figs are very helpful, and some persons depend upon them entirely, eating as many as a dozen every evening and then drinking several glasses of warm water afterward. For your kidney trouble you should be directed by a doctor.

The opening decline uncovered some stop-loss orders. July declined to 11.35 and October to 11.05, or 14 to 18 points below yesterday's finals. This uncovered trade buying limits and after the selling subsided prices rallied several points.

Trading was quiet later in the morning. Offerings were light after the early [illegible] had run its course and prices recovered a good part of the losses. At [illegible] July was ruling around 11.48 and October 11.14, or 9 to 10 points above the lows of the morning, but about 4 to 6 points under yesterday's close.

The market advanced further late in the day on covering and commission house buying, futures closing very steady, 10-12 higher. Spot steady; middling 11.90.

New Orleans Cotton Easier.

NEW ORLEANS, April 18.—((AP)—Cotton futures opened easier here today due to a tendency of traders to liquidate their holdings for over the Easter holidays beginning tomorrow. Light liquidation by longs unsettled the market at the opening and prices eased from 1 to 10 points below the previous close. As May is said to be pretty well liquidated, this position was but one point lower at the opening at 11.35. July opened at 11.46, Oct. at 11.11, Dec. at 11.17 and Jan. at 11.20.

Selling slackened after the first call and prices ruled around 50 cents a bale below Wednesday's close.

Wheat Irregular.

CHICAGO, April 18.—(AP)—In a typical pre-holiday market, wheat values today averaged higher, but sagged at the last.

A feature of late trading was sales of wheat against purchases of corn. On the other hand, reports from the Canadian as well as the American northwest indicated that wheat seeding was somewhat later than normal.

Wheat closed easy, 1-8 to 5-8 under yesterday's finish, May 1.00-1.00 1-4, corn 1-4 to 1 1-8 up, May 90 1-8 1-4, oats unchanged to 1-4 off, and provisions 10 to 12 cents down.

BOND-REDEMPTION METHOD INTRODUCED IN SENATE TODAY

SENATOR HARRISON PREDICTS ROOSEVELT WILL APPROVE NEW PLAN

WASHINGTON, April 17. —(AP)—A bond-redemption method of compromising the cash bonus issue—estimated to cost $1,300,000,000 and designed to meet administration requirements—was introduced today by Chairman Harrison of the senate finance committee.

He said his bill, which he forecast President Roosevelt would approve if passed by congress, would cost the government $500,0000,000 more than present law.

It would advance the maturity date of the adjusted service certificates from 1945 to 1938 and offer to exchange for them negotiable bonds, readily convertible into cash.

The bonds, which the veterans could get in exchange for their certificates would bear interest at 3 per cent, which Harrison said in a statement would make it possible for the soldiers to "find a ready market for them."

But as an incentive for veterans not to redeem their certificates for bonds, the bill would extend to them the right to hold the certificates until the old maturity date of 1945 and obtain 4 per cent interest, compounded annually.

Harrison said if all veterans took advantage of the exchange offer, the compromise plan would cost the government $500,000,000 more than the present law. He estimated the total cost would be $1,300,000,000, or $1,000,000 less than the cost of the Patman bill which passed the house. The Patman measure, however, would expand the currency to cash the certificates.

Policy Opposed to Pensions.

In an effort to head off future demands from the veterans, the bill would declare against general pension legislation, in these words:

"That in view of the generous benefits accorded by the government to veterans of the World War, in the form of insurance, compensation, disability allowances, hospitalization, vocational rehabilitation, adjusted compensation (as liberalized by this act) preference of various kinds, under legislation of general application, and other benefits and allowances, many of which have not been granted to veterans of prior wars, it is hereby expressly declared to be the policy of congress that there should not be any general pension laws enacted for veterans of the World War or their dependents; and nothing in this act shall be construed as indicating a tendency toward a contrary policy, or as implying that favorable consideration will be given at any time to a change in the policy hereby declared."

Confers With President.

Harrison introduced the bill after a conference on the subject Sunday with President Roosevelt at the White House.

Though the White House has guarded against committing the chief executive to the compromise, Harrison and his advisors on Capitol Hill were confident he would approve the measure.

As he introduced the bill, Harrison issued the following explanatory statement:

"The bill seeks to amend the World War adjusted compensation act of May 19, 1924, so as to permit veterans who so desire to surrender their certificates and lieu thereof receive negotiable bonds. The rate of interest which the bonds will pay is 3 per cent, and as government obligations bearing this rate are now greatly in demand, such veterans as may desire to convert these securities into cash will find a ready market for them.

"So as to protect the veterans against being defrauded by unscrupulous persons attempting to gain possession of the bonds at less than their real value, there is a provision making it a fraud to purchase or otherwise obtain possession of the bonds in exchange for any consideration less than the par value of the bonds.

Insurance Policies.

"The adjusted service certificates issued under the present law are nothing more or less than 20 year endowment insurance policies. The maturity face values of the adjusted service certificates are based upon the adjusted service credits, that is, the $1.00 or $1.25 a day (together with an additional grant because of deferment of payment) with interest compounded at the rate of 4 per cent from the dates of issue. None of these certificates were issued earlier than January 1, 1925.

"The proposed bill will give to the veterans the amount of their adjusted service credits with interest compounded from November 11, 1918, instead of only from 1925. Those veterans who do not desire to cash in their certificates in exchange for these negotiable bonds shall have the option of obtaining the same benefits as carried in the original act.

"It further gives to those veterans who desire to carry on their investment the privilege of holding them after the date when their surrender value approximates their maturity value, and to obtain 4 per cent compounded annually up until 1945.

Additional Cost $500,000,000

"If the bill I have introduced should become a law, and all veterans should take advantage by exchanging their certificates for negotiable bonds, the additional cost to the government would be approximately five hundred million dollars more than it would cost under the original act.

"While the time at which the maturity value may be procured will be greatly accelerated, the veterans will have the benefit of retaining protection until the date of the maturity value is reached. Even after the date of the maturity value is reached, the proposal gives to the veteran the right to retain his certificate until January 1, 1945, at 4 per cent interest compounded annually.

"The bill commits the congress to a declaration of policy against general pension legislation. It does not affect existing law granting benefits to World War veterans. Consequently, it would in no way affect allowances now being paid."

Hen Laying War Eggs Again And Conflict Is Near

TEXARKANA, Texas, April 17.—(AP)—Charles Settles, a Bowie county farmer who in 1912 predicted the world war, today predicted another conflict within two years.

Settles explained that in 1912 one of his hens began laying the same type eggs he found in nests today.

"Everybody laughed at me then when I said a war was coming," he said, "but two years later they were laughing on the other side of their face.

"If another war doesn't break out within two years, then my hen doesn't know her business."

The eggs are cylindrical and carry a protuberance on one end which, Settles pointed out, strongly suggests the head of a torpedo.

OVERSEAS PHONE COMMUNICATION IS DEMONSTRATED HERE

Frank E. Shoup, assistant general manager, and F. M. Whitten, acting advertising manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, both of Dallas, presented an interesting program on "The Magic of Communication," at Wednesday's luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club at the Navarro hotel. Karl Blackwell and Ralph Tatum had charge of the program's arrangement, and Joel C. Trimble and Ben Blackmon were named as next week's committee.

The same program was given at 10:30 at chapel period in the junior high school. The two telephone officials were assisted by Miss Lounette Kennedy and Mrs. Dolan Minster, local operators.

A synthetic or home made telephone call was put through to the "manager of the Sydney, Australia phone office," who it later developed was Mr. Written. In illustrating how a call was put through, Mr. Shoup called a local operator and gave his desired call. She plugged through to Dallas, thence to New York, and thence to Rocky Point, Long Island, where the message was radioed to Scotland, and thence carried by wire to London, and then to Sydney. It was brought out that the voice from overseas returns via a radio station in Maine, and the voice operates a relay which cuts out the other voice being transmitted at the same time.

Mr. Shoup talked through a small microphone that was concealed in his clothing, and his voice was heard amplified through a loud speaker.

Explained Telephone

He explained the fundamentals of the telephone, and showed that the human voice is transformed into delicate electrical frequencies and sent over the wire, to be turned back into voice at the other end. He pointed out that the modulations of the voice are reproduced with such fidelity that characteristics of voices are distinguishable.

The assistant general manager showed a re-production of Bell's first telephone, and recounted the first conversation that was transmitted over wires. The original phone was efficient for only a short distance, Mr. Shoup went on, because of the varying lengths of wavelengths. This was overcome with the development of the Pupin loading coil, which is placed at certain intervals along the wires. The Pupin coil equalizes the wavelengths and increased the range of talking over wire until in 1911 it was possible to talk from New York to Denver, Colo.

Revolutionized Wireless

Mr. Shoup said that in 1905 Lee deForrest invented the "audion," which was purchased by the Bell laboratories, and developed into the vacuum tube in 1915, which revolutionized wireless and talking over wires. He said it was the audion tube that makes it possible now for Corsicana telephone subscribers to talk to any country in the world except China, and that will be possible in a short while.

At this time Mr. Shoup explained the development of the alloy which has been named "permalloy," and which is so sensitive that it becomes magnetized only when pointed north, and becomes demagnetized when it is pointed east and west. He illustrated this by pointing a bar of permalloy toward the north and picking up a small metal item. When the bar was turned west, it lost its magnetism, and the metal object fell off the end of the bar. This metal, according to the assistant general manager is used as a loading coil for oceanic cables, and replaces use there of the loading coil or vacuum tube.

He demonstrated another invention which is an artificial larynx. He talked through the artificial vocal cords. Mr. Shoup demonstrated another alloy, which is cobalt steel, and it heavily and permanently magnetized. It is used in small microphones to replace the old large pieces of steel that were used as the magnets. It is called "floating metal."

Overseas Connections

Mr. Shoup explained the various operations gone through before a call is gotten through to London or other overseas connections. The local operator, he said puts the call through to Dallas, thence it goes to New York and thence to Rocky Point, Long Island, where the voice is amplified 300 million times and sent via radio and directional antenna to Scotland. The voice has almost completely played out by then and is amplified again and sent by wire into London where it is cleared to other connections.

The speaker explained that the voice from London or other points returns to the United States through another route and through another "overseas" operator and radio station.

Truck Operators License Law Was Upheld by Court

WACO, April 18. (AP)—The tenth court of civil appeals today upheld the law requiring truck operators to obtain permits from the Texas railroad commission.

The court acted in affirming action of the Limestone county district judge in dissolving a temporary injunction granted B. B. Britton. The injunction restrained Commissioner Lon A. Smith and commission officers from interfering with the operation of Britton's trucks. The commission had denied Britton a permit.

GEORGE B. SIMPSON, FORMER CORSICANA DRUGGIST, IS DEAD

George Baker Simpson, aged 68 years, former druggist in Rice, Corsicana and Tyler, died in the Corsicana Hospital and Clinic Tuesday night at 7 o'clock a few hours after he was stricken while down-town.

The funeral rites were held from the Methodist church at Rice Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock with burial in the Rice cemetery. Rev. W. W. Moss, Methodist minister, conducted the services.

Mr. Simpson was in the drug busines in Rice for a number of years and later was connected with the Penland Drug Store and Cooper Pharmacy, here.

Surviving are two sons, J. M. Simpson and George B. Simpson, Jr., both of Tyler; two daughters, Misses Mary and Martha Simpson both of Corsicana; mother, Mrs. J. J. Simpson, Lewistown, Idaho; two brothers, Fayette and Marvin Simpson, both of Kentucky; and four sisters, Mrs. W. J. Payne, Washington; Mrs. Cora Payne, of Kentucky; Mrs. Edna Asbinburst, Tennessee; and Mrs. Jim Briley, Lewistown, Idaho.

Pallbearers were L. S. Cooper, John Bradley, Newt Bell, L. M. Barrington, A. C. Hervey and L. W. Brewer.

The funeral was directed by the Corley Funeral Home.

Annual Parent Night Program Planned For Schools at Emhouse

Annual parent night will be observed by the Emhouse schools Friday night, April 23, it has been announced by E. C. Butler, superintendent. The theme for the occasion will be "Interpreting the School to Parents," Mr. Butler stated.

Visiting hours will be observed from 7 to 9. During those hours representative work of all classes will be on exhibit and may be viewed by all present.

A musical program will be given from 9 to 9:30 and at 9:30 a short address of welcome will be made by R. E. Huling, president of the board.

Speakers on the program will be N. Suttle Roberts and Perry McCammon.

Over 800 attended the affair last year and 1,000 or more are expected Friday night.

Teachers and others interested in school work from all sections of the county are expected to attend as well as several from out of the county.

State Home Won Over Frost Tuesday

State Home hammered out a 10-6 decision over the Frost club in the Navarro county high school league game Tuesday afternoon. Moore, State Home rightfielder, enjoyed a perfect day at bat with five singles in five times to bat. Keathley, Frost leftfielder, hit a triple and single for the lead for Frost.

Frost forged ahead, 4-1 in the first inning, but the State Home crew rallied during the late innings to overcome the advantage and forge ahead.

PLANS ARE BEING MADE FOR FARMERS GO TO WASHINGTON

PLAINVIEW, April 17.—(AP)—Arrangements were being made today for a delegation of Texas farmers to visit Washington May 23 in support of the processing tax and other principles of the present AAA set-up.

C. H. Day of Plainview, chairman of the Texas cotton advisory committee, said about 250 farmers probably would make the trip. The committee represents about 300,000 cotton farmers. Day said representatives of the growers of other commodities and of other agricultural states would be invited to join in the trip.

He said he and two other committeemen would go to Washington this week to arrange audiences with President Roosevelt, Secretary Wallace and Congressmen from agricultural states.

He said the trip was being planned as an answer to present organized opposition to certain basic features of the present set-up.

"We don't want to be put on the relief rolls," he said in explaining opposition to operation of the plan of Senator George for payment of agricultural benefits from the $4,880,000,000 relief fund. "We feel that the processing tax is the best method of meeting benefit payments."

Urges Precautions To Prevent Rabies

Several children in various parts of the city have been dog-bite victims recently according to information received by Dr. W. T. Shell, Jr., city health officer, and the physician suggested that precautions be taken.

While no cases of rabies have been reported in the city and no rabid animals, the doctor urged that those who had been bitten have their wounds cared for by their family physician. He also urged that the animal inflicting the wound be penned up and kept under careful observation for at least seven days. If the animal shows signs of rabies a veterinarian should be summoned and if necessary the animal killed and the head sent to Austin for examination.

He also suggested that residents of the city report the presence of stray dogs, or other animals to the police department at once.

FORT WORTH JAILER FRUSTRATES ATTEMPT EIGHT MEN TO ESCAPE

ONE MAN SLAIN AND TWO OTHERS WOUNDED IN BREAK EARLY TODAY

FORT WORTH, April 16.—(AP)—One prisoner was killed and two others wounded when Jail Guard Charles B. Miller opened fire during an attempted break of eight prisoners from the Tarrant county jail early today.

Melvin Bowes, 33, fugitive from the Florida state prison and a criminal figure in various sections of the country, was slain.

Clarence B. Billingsley, 23, a jockey held on charges of theft and burglary, and James Lawrence Kirk, scheduled for trial Thursday on robbery charges, were wounded.

Eight prisoners had sawed the bars of two cells, jailers said, and manipulated the combination of a master lock box to liberate 16 prisoners in the cell block. Eight prisoners, however, refused to leave their cells.

Jailer Miller and E. M. James, a guard, who was unarmed, were making their regular rounds when Bowes, Billingsley and Kirk sprang from a cell and attacked them.

Bowes, wielding an iron bar, battered James over the head as Billingsley jumped on Miller's back, the jailers said.

Bowes is Killed.

Miller reached his pistol, jerked it loose and shot Billingsley. He wheeled and fired on Bowes. The prisoner turned and ran around the corner of a cell block and fell dead. He had been shot just below the left breast.

Two other prisoners had circled the cell block and came upon Miller from the rear. Billingsley, diminutive jockey, leaped on Miller's back. The jailer reached around and fired, a bullet striking the jockey in the hip.

George Droddy, who recently was shot in an attempted jailbreak at Decatur, Texas, was "gun shy," and ran out the door when the shooting started. Jailers found him cowering behind a table in the outer corridor.

Kirk, the third man shot, received a flesh wound in the hip. He told jailers he had not intended to escape but had been caught in the corridor.

Effective Shooting.

Miller fired his pistol four times and struck three prisoners.

The prisoners attempted to escape from a cell block located on the fifth floor. It houses 16 men. A master lock box, opened by a combination knob, is located just outside the block.

Two bars had been sawed out of the three cells, enabling three prisoners, Billingley, Stine Weatherred, awaiting trial for a hotel robbery, and Arthur Brown, under 99-year sentence as an habitual criminal, to enter the cell block corridor.

A small hand mirror attached to a stick and a rope improvised from a strip off a mattress, enabled the trio to open the cells. Weatherred held the stick, jailers said, through the outer bars and across a three foot corridor to the lock control box. Brown, a trusty who knew the combination, looped the rope over the knob and by looking into the mirror suspended on the stick, opened the box.

All Doors Opened.

By reaching through the bars the prisoners worked the levers and opened all 16 doors in the block.

The prisoners told Justice of the [illegible] Hal P. Hughes, who conducted an inquest, that three or four night had been spent in sawing the 12-inch bars next to the floor of the cells. They said it required from two to two and a half hours to saw each of the six bars.

Brown said he found saw blades on top of the cell block where empty tobacco cans and other objects had been thrown.

Bowes, who had a long criminal record, told fellow prisoners before the break:

"I'm going the easiest way—or else."

Long Criminal Record.

He was charged here with the robbery of a store. He had escaped from San Quentin prison in California where he was sentenced to life for robbery; later given 15 years at Repessa, Cal., for robbery; served a term in Michigan for assault and 90 days in Detroit for assault to murder; sentenced to a term in Missouri for counterfeiting and 12 years for robbery in Jacksonville, Fla.

He recently attempted an escape from the Dallas county jail but a jailer overpowered the leader of the break and frustrated the attempt.

The other prisoner involved in the attempted break was Albert Arseneau, 17, sentenced to five years for robbery.

DALLAS, April 16.—(AP)—Melvin Bowes, who was killed in an attempted jailbreak at Fort Worth today, was a fugitive from the Florida state prison. He was arrested here January 18 for return to Florida, where he was serving a 12-year sentence for robbery.

After his arrest here, he was identified as a robber who held up a grocery store in North Dallas, shortly before his capture.

Police records show that Bowes was sentenced to life imprisonment in San Quentin penitentiary in California in 1921 for robbery, and was sentenced for assault to murder and counterfeiting at Detroit.

Bowes had several aliases, including James Cole, Peter Miller, Peter March and Steve Lovejoy.

Woodul Delivers Oil Compact To Marland Today

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 18.—(AP)—After a flight from Austin, Tex., Walter F. Woodul, lieutenant-governor of Texas, today delivered to Governor E. W. Marland of Oklahoma a certified copy of the Texas oil states compact legislation.

During the morning Woodul addressed the state house of representatives briefly. Woodul was to return to Austin late today.

Governor Marland said five states have now approved the oil legislation and the bills will not be forwarded to Washington for congressional ratification until California acts on its pending measure.

Birthdays of Four Celebrated Sunday In Roane Community

Birthdays were celebrated by the following Sunday: Mr. P. H. Powell, John Powell, Fred Reed and Mrs. Alton Burnett.

Mildred Eagles Won Close Tilt Tuesday

Mildred Eagles entered the won column of the Navarro County High School Baseball League Tuesday afternoon with a 4-1 victory over the Emhouse club.

W. Sirman, pitcher for Mildred, was the hero of the melee. He hurled the entire 7-inning contest, fanned 12 Emhouse lads, figured in the only double-play of the afternon and hammered out a two-bagger and a triple in three times to bat, bringing in two of the four runs staged by Mildred and scored once.

Each club was credited with nine hits.

DEATH SENTENCE OF W. R. HILDRETH IS AFFIRMED BY COURT

AUSTIN, April 17.—(AP)—The death penalty assessed W. R. Hildreth in Howard county on conviction of murder of his wife, Mrs. Docia Hildreth was affirmed today by the court of criminal appeals.

Hildreth was charged with fatally stabbing his wife with an ice pick at their home in Big Spring last October 1. Testimony showed he had objected to his wife attending picture shows or going to town without his permission.

The court denied permission to file a second motion for rehearing in the case of C. E. Heidingsfelder, sentenced to 10 years on conviction of embezzlement of $34,500 from a client. Heidingsfelder, convicted in Williamson county, recently began serving his term.

Conviction of T. M. White in Coryell county of murder in the slaying of P. H. (Pink) Milton was affirmed. White was sentenced to 30 years. The slaying occurred in Comanche county.

A majority opinion ruled alleged improper references to White as a bootlegger did not constitute grounds for reversal and that the bill of exception complaining against the assertions did not show they were made in the presence of the jury. Associate Justice F. L. Hawkins dissented.

Bud Burleson of Powell was here Thursday afternoon.

J. B. Adkins of Purdon was in Corsicana Thursday.

Pickett Smothered Navarro Tuesday 14-0

PICKETT, April 17.—(Spl.)—Pickett high nine demonstrated plenty of power Tuesday afternoon when they smothered the Navarro High team, 14-0, in a Navarro county high school league contest here.

G. Tanner, pitcher and short stop, led the hitting parade for the victors when he doubled once and connected with three singles in five times to the plate. G. Tanner and V. Tanner divided time on the mound and held the Navarro boys to four [illegible].

SOIL EROSION IS STRESSED EIGHTH PANHANDLE SESSION

PLAINVIEW, April 18.—(AP)—Dairy cattle breeders at the eighth annual Panhandle Plains dairy show today turned their attention to the control of soil erosion.

O. T. Williams of Dalhart, extension agent for the federal soil erosion service, discussed erosion control at an informal conference. He will speak again on a permanent wind erosion program as the concluding feature to an educational program arranged by Frank Phillips of West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon.

Williams told of the work being done on a 26,000-acre wind erosion control project near Dalhart. He listed contouring, terracing, listing, tree planting and the planting of vegetative coverings as the best methods of checking the effects of eroding winds.

A. H. Leidigh, dean of the division of agriculture of Texas Technilogical College of Lubbock also spoke.

Cow Milking Contest.

A parade of prize winning animals was postponed because of a strong wind. Milk maids will vie against time in a milking contest, the final event on the show program. Five prizes have been posted for the entrants who can extract the most milk from a prize cow in three minutes.

Miles Milhoan of Wildorado, was elected president of the northwest Texas shorthorn association at an organization meeting of milking shorthorn breeders. Frank F. Weil of Hale Center was named vice president. J. H. Knox of the animal husbandry department of Texas A. and M. college and secretary of the Texas shorthorn breeders association, spoke.

In a dairy products judging contest for farm women, Mrs. J. M. Whitfield of Lamb county won first place. Mrs. Bennett Lane of Lubbock county was second.

D. E. Magee of Blooming Grove was in Corsicana Thursday afternoon.
